The Automobile Capital
The G. M. Laboratory
Machines That Think
Henry Ford's Telegram

—By Arthur Brisbane—

DETROIT, Mich., May 28—Fine weather in the capital of the world's automobile industry.

The event looked forward to at the moment is the annual 500-mile race that will start at Indianapolis next Monday, Decoration Day.

This year Edsel Ford will drive the car that will start the races. He will lead them around the track once in a 12-cylinder Lincoln, at a moderate pace, about 70 miles an hour, and start them after one lap around the big saucer.

Mr. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Co., has entered five stock cars. Practically all the others were built for racing. General Motors and Ford do not compete.

Capt. Rickenbacker will be there. No American should forget him. Best of all the air fighters we sent to Europe, he represents the courage and skill that this nation will need some day.

On the wall of the General Motors research laboratory, occupying an entire building under the direction of Charles F. Kettering, you read:

"The death of a theory is the birth of a fact."

Mr. Kettering should add to that, for nobody knows it better, "The birth of a sound theory sometimes wipe out fallacies mistaken for facts." For instance, the theory that the earth goes round the sun wiped out many accepted "facts."

In that admirable laboratory theories are born and transmuted into facts. You see a machine that can look into a mixture of metals and tell what is in the mixture. With that machine Archimedes could have analyzed Heiro's golden crown without using the idea that occurred to him in his bath.

There is a machine that looks into the centre of a steel axle and photographs the slightest flaw.

There is a Neon lamp, mysteriously synchronized with a wheel or a shaft making two thousand revolutions per minute. The light makes the moving object apparently stand still.

The shaft, instead of revolving so rapidly you cannot see it, is apparently at rest, can even be made to revolve, apparently, in the opposite direction.

An application of that scientific miracle may some day enable astronomers to study the fixed stars, planets and our sun, as though they were standing still.

In that same laboratory, music is sent over a beam of light to a distant radio. There is no sound where the beam starts, if you cut off the light with your hand the music stops.

Near that transmission of music by light you see an engine used for experiments with engine "knocking" trouble. A knock that could be heard two blocks ceases when a certain fluid is added to the ordinary gasoline.

And, more wonderful, the knocking when at its worst stops immediately when a tiny uncorked bottle of a certain chemical is held before a pipe leading to the knocking.

None of this chemical goes into the fuel. The engine simply "sniffs" the odor, and stops knocking.

You have seen a lady brought out of a faint by holding salts to her nose. This is the same thing in mechanics.

Henry Ford had for his luncheon party yesterday, at the plant, his son Edsel; Mr. Sorensen, his manager; Mr. Cameron, M. C. Meigs, commonly known as "The Goliath of the American Weekly," this writer and some others. They all ate bread made of soy, because Mr. Ford experiments with everything.

Mr. Ford, who seemed not to have the slightest idea that we are all "enjoying a depression," was interested in showing about 500 antique steam engines, gas engines and hot air engines to Mr. Meigs, who, like himself, knows all about oil feed, water pumps, valve gears, automatic governors, and other mysteries. Every steam engine that was ever made from the first to the latest Diesel product, is in Mr. Ford's antique collection, including even one of his own giant engines that turned out fifteen million Model T Fords.

He has not in his collection the primitive engine supposed to have run in the Sarapion at Alexandria long before the birth of Christ. That probably no longer exists. If he could find it, he would make it run. He has enough skilled mechanics restoring these old engines to equip an ordinary large factory.

When this writer arrived at Dearborn yesterday morning Mr. Ford had just answered a telegram received from L'Anse, Mich., telling him that the only bank at L'Anse had closed and asking "won't you advance several thousand dollars to help us out?" Mr. Ford had answered: "Sorry, but I have no money in banks."

HARVARD CREW MAKES FINALS

Philadelphia, May 28 (AP)—Princeton, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Harvard today qualified for the final of the 150-pound varsity crew race, the feature event in the American Rowing Association regatta on the Schuylkill River.

Princeton won the first heat in 6 minutes 40 seconds for the one-mile 550-yard Henley distance. The course record is 6:39 4-5, set by Pennsylvania in 1927. Columbia finished second and Navy third.

Pennsylvania won the second heat in 6:54, with Harvard a close second, one-fifth of a second behind. Cornell finished third. The heats were rowed in the morning, with the final events scheduled for the afternoon program.

The Pennsylvania eight, victors in the mid-American regatta at Marietta, Ohio, last week came down the west side of the course, chased closely all the way by the Harvard boat. Cornell proved stronger than was expected and gave both the leaders a close fight for the entire distance.

PLUNGE KILLS PACKER SWIFT

Chicago, May 28 (AP)—Edward F. Swift, Sr., 64, chairman of Swift & Co., plunged to death today from the window of his six-story apartment. He had been ill several weeks.

Mrs. Swift was in her boudoir when the tragedy occurred.

Swift, still in his pyjamas, had been left alone in the living room. The window was almost wide open. The sill was knee high and outside the window was a brass railing about eight inches high.

His sudden passing was a distinct shock to La Salle st. and "Packingtown" alike. On the Chicago Stock Exchange the news of the chairman's death was reflected in a quick loss of a point to near $8 in Swift & Co. stock while Swift International dropped 2¼ to a new low mark for 1932.

The veteran packer had fallen from his window to the alley at the rear of the North State st. apartment. Death was instant.

He was the son of the pioneer packer, Gustavus Franklin Swift, founder of the firm that became the world's largest.

Swift was chairman of the Chicago house and President of Compania Swift Internacional, which does an extensive business in South America.

POLICE LIST 40 DIVES TO BE CLOSED

Hultman, Stung by Defiance of Bootlegs, Launches Drive Against Speakeasies

BULLETIN

Federal day agents raided a beer "plant" in Second st., near P st., South Boston, late today, arresting five men and seizing quantities of liquor.

Four of those arrested were booked as City Point gratis as Leo Sullivan, James McCarthy, Philip Lydon and John Sheahan, all of 5th st.

Strong on [illegible] liquor sellers, "undercover" police and federal agents declared war on downtown speakeasies today.

At least 40 places must go, said the ultimatum of Police Commissioner Hultman, whose department has felt the scorn of one proprietor in particular.

The government agents carefully withheld their plans. They were secret plans, but the Boston Evening American learned the activities will center chiefly in the Back Bay.

POLICE DEFIED.

But the police attack was aimed at the Lagrange st. division, where the close-up warnings of Capt. John J. Anderson and Lieut. Stephen Gillis were received with chuckles and guffaws.

"I'm not afraid of any cop. I run a 'respectable joint.' See if you can close me up," was the reply of the ultra-defiant one.

He is the one whom police have labeled "a hard nut to crack."

Indications that other proprietors might follow the lead of the "recalcitrant" brought the police decision to use its new "undercover" force in the attack.

TO SPARE NO ONE

One of the first steps in the drive will be toward the sources of tip-offs that have spoiled many raids in the past.

Orders to get ironclad evidence, spare no one and close them all were given Lieut. Gillis, recently assigned to head the new undercover division. And he will have an unlimited force at his command.

Capt. Jeremiah Gallivan, commander of the division, was not blamed by his superiors for conditions there, it was learned.

They blamed the tip-off system that has found its way there, a system that may soon be traced to offices in the division, it was reported by those close to the situation.

GARNER EXPECTED HOOVER TO FIGHT AID OF MASSES

SPEAKER FLAYS PRESIDENT IN HOT REPORT

Says Finance Corporation Has Given No Relief; Republicans Won to His Program

Washington, May 28—Speaker Garner today in a formal statement assailed President Hoover for his criticism of the $2,300,000,000 relief program and denied that it was "pork barrel" legislation.

"The Democrats did not expect to receive real co-operation from the President in any matter benefiting the masses and those who might be termed the middle class of American people," Garner said.

"When he submitted his Reconstruction Finance Corporation plan it was hailed by the administration leaders as a panacea for all national ills. The Democrats, desirous of aiding a distressed people, accepted the recommendations of the administration at their face value, and co-operated to pass the bill.

HASN'T RELIEVED.

"If the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has aided materially in reducing unemployment or relieving human distress from the prolonged depression, I have failed to observe it.

"Banks, railroads, insurance companies and other financial institutions have received needed aid, but the benefits have not filtered down to the small business men or the smaller industries."

Approval of the vast program of unemployment relief legislation based upon the Speaker's plan was freely predicted in the House despite President Hoover's scathing indictment of the public works feature of the plan.

BIPARTISAN BACKING

The Speaker received scores of telegrams early today endorsing the plan to state jobs on public works, provide a direct relief where local agencies have failed and expand the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to speed revival of all business.

Encouraged by these messages and pledges of support, some of them from Republicans, Garner worked with legislative experts to complete details of the bill for committee consideration next week.

Despite Mr. Hoover's attitude the drive for the program assumed a bi-partisan aspect.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders admitted the necessity of enacting relief legislation before adjournment. Already enough members have pledged themselves to block adjournment until relief is afforded.

$2,309,084,337 Aid in Speaker's Program

Washington, May 28 (AP)—Majority Leader Rainey today made public a statement showing the revised Garner relief program would total $2,309,084,337, including public works construction to cost $1,209,-084,337.

Besides the $100,000,000 for direct relief to be administered by President Hoover, the program provides $730,901,800 in new authorized projects and $478,092,468 for re authorized projects.

A total of $421,380,869 is carried for rivers and harbors projects, including $316,000,000 for the deepening of the Mississippi river channel from the mouth of the Ohio to Minneapolis and $68,000,000 for the improvement of the Tennessee river.

In addition $180,692,468 is carried for flood control on projects heretofore authorized.

A total of $227,400,000 is provided for federal highway aid, including $16,000,000 for forest roads and trails.

For public buildings, mostly post offices and court houses, $373,402,-000 is carried.

This includes $172,830,000 for projects not heretofore specifically authorized; $5,013,000 in the increased limit of cost on authorized projects; $90,000,000 in bonds and debentures totaling $1,000,000,000 for loans to states and political subdivisions and to private interests for construction of productive projects.

CLUBMEN BOLT HARVARD 'REDS'

The Harvard Liberal Club received its first blow today in the announcement of the formation of a new organization known as the "Harvard Inquiry," which is being initiated by dissenting members of the Liberal Club.

The latter have signified their intention of resigning on the basis that the club is no longer "liberal," but "Communist."

They base their action on the Harvard-Liberals' affiliation with the National Students' League, a Communist group.

The Inquiry is not being organized as a rival club and neither attempts to pass resolutions nor to take part in other prominent acts.

The purpose is to select one problem of national importance and make it the center for discussion in meetings at the seven houses which shelter the upper classmen.

SHOTS FIRED IN ROOF CHASE

Francis Eyrnis, 15, of Grant st., Medford, led the Chelsea police a merry chase over the built-together roofs on Arlington st. in the Weams' hours this morning.

Patrolmen Fred McCormack was passing 124 Arlington st. at 3 a. m. when he heard strange noises coming from the cellar. Notifying the police he went in. A youth, attempting to pry open a trap door to gain entrance to the ground floor of the house, heard him coming and broke for the roof, running up the fire escape.

McCormack gave chase, but was unable to find where the boy had fled. Reinforcements arrived from the station, however, and Patrolman O'Neill spotted the youth running across an adjoining roof. He fired a warning shot, which caused Eyrnis to stop his mad flight and await arrest behind a chimney.

ENGINEER HELD IN SHIP SINKING

Charged with the sinking of the steam trawler Yale on Georges Banks in September, 1930, James G Harvey of South Boston pleaded not guilty before Commissioner Francis Goodale in Federal Court today and was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing June 6.

Harvey was arrested last night by Deputy U. S. Marshal Joseph Winston as the result of a prolonged investigation by officials of the U. S. Department of Justice under the direction of Asst. U. S. Attorney Haven Parker. Harvey, who denied all knowledge of the scuttling of the ship, was chief engineer aboard the vessel at the time.

Federal officials were reluctant to discuss the case but intimated that other persons had been implicated in the alleged barratry and that possibly there would be further arrests.

New York, May 28 (AP)—Because Bishop William T. Manning survived her, the will of Miss Laura Shannon, filed today, left $937,500 to St. Luke's Hospital, instead of to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. She made the provision in a codicil.

Miss Shannon left $250,000 in trust for the Very Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, dean of the cathedral, when the will was made in 1924, and his wife, Mary Louise. At their death the principal will go to St. Luke's.

Other bequests included a $125,000 trust fund to Mrs. Henrietta P. Lippincott, the wife of Arthur Lippincott, of Stockbridge, Mass., and $10,000 to the National Cathedral Association of Washington.

Los Angeles, May 28 (AP)—The sheriff's office announced today it had closed its investigation of the death of Dr. Leonard Thompson Troland, 43, Harvard University scientist, who yesterday plunged 250 feet to his death in a canyon on Mt. Wilson. Officials said the death was an accident.

Hunger Strike Fatal

Montreal, May 28—Wilfrid Bonjagger, 24, imprisoned for attacking his father, is dead, after refusing food and water for 11 days.

THIRD FUGITIVE WITH LONG

When Montreal police arrested Delaney and Robert Cocoanut, alleged members of the Hudson auto theft ring, they also captured another much-wanted individual, it developed today.

The third man in the toils is no other than Patrick Delaney who was arrested at Cocoanut Grove last December, while carrying a gun, and who misrepresented himself as the Masked Reporter of the Boston Evening American.

Delaney was sentenced to six months in lower court but appealed and was released in $1000 bail which he promptly jumped. How, why, when and where he joined Long and Lobo is not known, but he was with them when they were captured Thursday.

Patrolman David F. Caswell, who arrested Delaney originally, has started for Montreal with warrants while Dist. Atty. Foley prepared extradition papers. Three State detectives will precede him to Montreal to bring back Long and Lobo who are wanted for 31 car thefts and 15 safe breaks.

Before leaving Boston last night the detectives obtained a power of attorney from a bonding concern on the bonds of which Long and Lobo defaulted, which will do away with the formality of extradition.

Lt. Detective Ferrari and Sergts. Owen Hayes and Joseph Canavan of the state police will bring them back to Boston.

Worthless Check Passer Is Sought

Boston police are searching for a man who they say poses as a priest from Atlantic City, N. REVENUE BILL MUST RAISE 56 MILLION MORE

Watson Sets Total Needed to Balance the Budget as the Senate Fights Over Tax

Washington, May 28 (AP)—Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, informed the Senate today in the midst of an outbreak over the impending sales tax controversy, that Secretary Mills says the revenue bill must raise $56,000,000 more than it now provides in order to balance the budget.

Watson said the treasury head estimated the pending revenue measure now provided $969,000,000, whereas the treasury insisted that $1,025,000,000 must be raised, and $350,000,000 in economies provided to meet the budget demand for 1933.

FAVORS SALES TAX

"Where are we going to get the other $56,000,000?" asked Watson, who is supporting the general sales tax levy as a substitute for the special excise taxes.

Senator Couzens (R., Mich.) joined Harrison of Mississippi, the Democratic tax leader, in advocating a slightly higher increase in the income schedule to meet the difference.

Couzens also warned that debate on the proposal of Walsh (D., Mass.) for the 1.75 per cent sales tax would properly require a month or six weeks, "whereas we could balance the budget tonight if it weren't pending."

BOTH LEVIES URGED

Senator Glass suggested that Congress apply both the nuisance taxes and a general sales tax, so that there could be no doubt of the budget being balanced.

"I am utterly opposed to going to the country under the false pretence that we have balanced the budget when we have not balanced the budget," he said.

PASTOR SCORED BY A. L. CHIEF

A protest against use of Boston public schools for the dissemination of propaganda, was made today by the head of the Cecil W. Fogg Post, A. L., as a result of charges by Rev. George M. Bailey of the First M. E. Church of Hyde Park.

In a letter to Chairman William A. Reilly of the Boston school committee, Commander William R. Mahoney of the Fogg Post charged the clergyman had slandered the Legion and insulted all opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment.

The charges were based on the Rev. Mr. Bailey's speech during Memorial Day exercises in Hyde Park high school, when he said he saw a man wearing the Legion uniform, staggering along the street, intoxicated.

In connection with the clergyman's reference to an intoxicated Legionnaire, Commander Mahoney said the man in question was a teetotaler, a regular attendant of the Congregational church, and a shell-shocked veteran who had been exhausted by attending numerous memorial services that day.

Rep. Logan of Hyde Park challenged Rev. Mr. Bailey to debate on prohibition.

Hoover Frees Dad of 3 After Their Plea

Washington, May 28 (AP)—Impressed by their plea, President Hoover today freed three children who came to Washington asking their father's release from jail that he would consider the case carefully.

Detroit, May 28 (AP)—On instructions from the attorney-general's office at Washington, U. S. Dist. Atty. Frederick today obtained the release of Charles R. Pegan, held as a federal prisoner on a charge of driving a stolen automobile from Missouri to Michigan.

Mrs. Hoover Motors Guests to Rapida t

Washington, May 28 (AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover left here today to spend the weekend at the President's camp on the Rapidan.

She drove her own car and with her went Mrs. Edgar Rickard, of New York, and Mrs. Stark Mahaffey, of California. The president had not definitely decided whether to visit the camp this week.

INDICT CURTIS IN LINDBERGH KIDNAP HOAX

Faking Shipbuilder Is to Face Trial Late in June, the Prosecutor Declares

Flemington, N. J., May 28 (AP)—An indictment, presumed to be against John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk hoaxer in the Lindbergh case, was handed today to Justice Trenchard, who ordered it delivered to Quarter Sessions Court for further proceedings.

Prosecutor Hauck would not say definitely that the indictment had been returned against Curtis but he did say:

"The Curtis case will be tried not later than the week of June 27."

INDICTMENT CERTAIN

As an indictment is a necessary preliminary to trial this statement was taken as positive corroboration of the general belief that one of today's indictments was against Curtis.

Hauck added that Curtis would not be arraigned for pleading on Tuesday, as previously indicated, but would probably plead on Saturday, June 4. As his plea would be to an indictment this statement, too was taken as virtual acknowledgment that Curtis has been indicted.

The prosecutor said he received a telegram this morning from W. C. Pender, Norfolk attorney, who will defend Curtis, saying he could not be ready to try the case before June 13, the day the prosecutor had hoped to begin trial.

IMAGINARY CLUES

Curtis began his fake negotiations soon after the Lindbergh baby was stolen from his crib March 1. He was at first unable to interest Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, but succeeded in doing so after persuading the Very Rev. H. Dobson Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy W. Burrage, retired, friends of the Lindbergh family, to intercede in his behalf. Curtis and his two former associates live in Norfolk, Va.

On the night of May 12, when the body of the murdered baby was found, Col. Lindbergh was at sea following up one of Curtis' imaginary clues and Curtis even then continued to furnish police with what he later confessed was false information.

He confessed on May 17 and was next day placed in jail to await the action of the grand jury which subsequently was asked by the prosecutor to indict him.

DILL FOR HOUSE STOCK TAXES

Washington, May 28 (INS)—A spirited drive to restore the House rates on stock transfers was started today by Sen. Dill of Washington, as the Senate sought to expedite final action on the revenue bill.

"The New York market is a gambling institution in which the insiders used marked cards and loaded dice," Dill declared. "Stories revealed by the Senate banking and currency committee are enough to shock any decent citizen. It would be a fine thing if Congress would pass a law closing the stock exchanges during this depression."

The House fixed the stock transfer tax at 4 cents on each $200 or fraction thereof, with the important proviso that the levy should not be less than one-fourth of one per cent of a selling price.

The Senate finance committee retained the 4 cent rate, but struck out the one-fourth of one per cent minimum.

enty-five thousand" to start the bank going again?

Mr. Ford's reply, which this writer has his permission to print, proves that Mr. Ford thinks the kind of bank that decides to die might as well stay dead. He wired to the L'Anse committee that had asked for seventy-five thousand dollars as follows:

"We have hundreds of similar requests and thus far we have not been convinced that it is wise to support a system that has so lamentably failed in protecting the savings which working people have entrusted to it. STOP The primary function of a bank is to provide a place of safe deposit and not to popularize this in any way. STOP It seems to me that the duty of saving a bank falls upon those whose misjudgment injured it. STOP We have studied several communities in these matters and find that they do very well without banks as at present managed. STOP A prosperous bank too often means a mortgaged community, and such prosperity is the forerunner of depression. STOP

"Lending money at high interest is no help to any community. STOP Advise your people to plant their gardens and work their farms and dispel the fallacy that money can make money.—Henry Ford."

You will note with interest that Mr. Ford in his telegram repeats the advice so often given by Voltaire: Cultivons nos jardins. "Let us cultivate our gardens."

Mr. Ford's telegram apparently does not apply to banks engaged in banking that do not blow up.

You will learn with interest that following a bank explosion, Tecumseh, Mich., has had no bank. A reliable man has been put in charge of a safe that belonged to the old bank. Citizens who wish to deposit money for safe keeping bring it to that safe, and get it out again when they want it. Primitive, but Tecumseh depositors know where their money is, and can get it.

Mrs. Pratt Again Heads Junior Leagues of America

Los Angeles, May 28—Mrs. John G. Pratt of New Orleans was elected president of the Association of Junior Leagues of America at the closing session of the 12th annual convention here yesterday. Philadelphia was selected for the 1933 assembly.

Mrs. Pratt

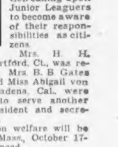
The 250 delegates adopted only one resolution calling upon Junior Leaguers to become aware of their responsibilities as citizens.

Mrs. H. H. Armstrong of Hartford, Ct., was re-elected treasurer. Mrs. R. B. Gates of Dayton, O., and Miss Abigail von Schlegell of Pasadena, Cal., were both re-elected to serve another year as vice-president and secretary, respectively.

A conference on welfare will be held in Boston, Mass., October 17-20, it was announced.

Cross Heads Connecticut Delegation to Convention

New Haven, May 28—Gov. Wilbur L. Cross was elected yesterday to serve as chairman of the Connecticut delegation to the Democratic national convention. Several of the important committee posts went to supporters of Alfred E. Smith, for whom the group was instructed.



Gov. Cross

Roosevelt backers now form the minority of the delegation, were given several honorary posts and members-ship on the notification committee.

David E. Fitzgerald of New Haven, was elected vice-chairman, and William S. Thoms of Waterbury, member of the resolutions committee. Both are Smith supporters.

Re-election of Howard by Typos Seems Assured

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28—Charles P. Howard of Chicago, president of the International Typographical Union, held a substantial lead today of 1138 votes over Leon H. Rouse of New York, and his re-election seemed assured. The vote of 274 locals had been reported in the election for international officers.

C. P. Howard

The locals not yet reported gave Howard a majority of about 7000 two years ago. Incomplete returns today gave Howard 18,624 votes and Rouse 17,428.

All other candidates on the Progressive ticket with Howard had leads varying from 5000 to 10,000.

SALESMAN HELD IN OKER DEATH

Rockport, May 28—Jerome B. McKenna, 28, of Boston, was taken into custody early today in connection with the investigation of the slaying of Arthur N. Oker, found dead in his tailor shop a week ago today.

He was brought here from Gloucester by Officers Quinn and States after failing to report to Chief of Police Sullivan yesterday morning with a companion, as previously agreed.

McKenna was one of two silverware salesmen questioned Thursday night by Chief Sullivan after having been stopped by a State trooper in Wrentham the night of the slaying.

At the time they were in the automobile of a Gloucester man, who said he had lent the machine after the salesmen told him they wanted to use it to make calls in Gloucester and Essex.

Their appearance at the police station here Thursday night was voluntary, but the two men failed to return yesterday for further questioning, as agreed McKenna was located in a Gloucester hotel.

State Detectives Stokley Murray and Griffin were conducting the investigation here today.

The Problem

SALES of ordinary life insurance in the United States fell off 26 per cent last month, as compared to the same month in 1931.

The Remedy

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men and start the nation back to prosperity.

Whites and Indians Join to Celebrate Salmon Run

Keller, Wash., May 28 (AP)—Redskins and palefaces open the age-old festival of the coming and going of the salmon near here today with a mixture of Indian ritual and paleface ballyhoo.

In olden times before the white man muscled in, Indians from all northwest tribes—apprised of the fish movement by runners and smoke signals—trekked to the San Poil river to hold potlatch, dance and attend the aboriginal equivalent of a county fair.

Horses were raced and traded, peanuts and blankets were gambled away, wives were bartered and fish were speared. All tribes were at peace, intent on letting the squaws fill up tribal larders against the big snows.

Most of these things the Indians do today, alongside the white man's rodeo, hot dog stands, airplane stunting and carnival midway attractions. They ride bucking horses, bulldog steers, buy soda pop and spend their dimes on chances to win kewpie dolls while the white men play at the Indian games.

The celebration lasts two days, during which tons of salmon will be speared, netted and smoked,

MAYOR WALKER PLANS TO RIP PROBE WIDE OPEN

SEA HERO IN PORT WITH CREW HE SAVED

32 LIVES SAVED IN EIGHT MINUTES IN SEA CRASH

WILL LET LOOSE ONSLAUGHT ON SEABURY

Observers Predict Hearings to Wind Up in a Move for Ouster Proceedings

New York, May 28 (INS)—Further evidence in his attempt to link Mayor Walker with the $1,000,000 bank and brokerage accounts of the fugitive Russell T. Sherwood, erstwhile accountant, was being shaped up by Samuel Seabury today.

At the same time it was reported the mayor was planning a verbal onslaught designed to "rip wide open" Seabury and the Hofstadter committee's probe of the Walker regime.

With the hearing recessed until Tuesday, and destined to continue for at least three more days, it became more apparent that the sensational investigation may wind up in formal charges being filed with Gov. Roosevelt, demanding the mayor's ouster.

However, persons close to Seabury appeared doubtful if he himself, would take a hand in such action. They intimated the evidence adduced at the hearing might be turned over to some civic group to use in demanding Walker's removal.

CHECKING ELLIS TESTIMONY.

With several of his aides, Seabury was at his summer home for the holiday week-end preparing to follow up 58 Tuesday the testimony given by James T. Ellis the final witness at yesterday's session.

Ellis, a Seabury accountant, told of having traced funds from Mayor Walker's accounts to those of Sherwood, and out again.

Through his findings, the Hofstadter counsel sought to break down Walker's testimony that Sherwood had never been his financial agent, and that he knew nothing of the $246,000 the small-salaried accountant deposited during the period Walker had been mayor.

Ellis testified he found in Sherwood's accounts with the Hanover Central Bank withdrawals amounting to $15,500 made payable to Mrs. Burke, and also $6934 for repairs to the yacht Mary W. used by the mayor's wife.

DENIES HELL RESIGN

Mrs. Burke is Mayor Walker's widowed sister, Mrs. Nan Walker Burke.

Paul Block, newspaper publisher, testified the $246,000 stock profit which he made for his friend, Mayor Walker, really amounted to giving the latter "something for nothing," out of pure friendship.

Mayor Walker today denied reports that he considered resigning or that he asked Park Commissioner Walter Herrick to resign. Herrick contradicted testimony which Walker gave on the stand previously concerning a deal in Interstate Trust Co. stock.

Capt. Borum of the liner City of Chattanooga, which crashed and sank the Merchants and Miners line ship Grecian off Block Island, came to Boston today with the survivors he snatched from graves in the sea. The rescued crew of the Grecian and the passengers on the Chattanooga were loud in their praise of Capt. Borum. He is credited with holding the fatalities down to four. He is shown here as he left his ship.

HAD LIFE BELT

Raymond W. Noon, Boston restauranter, who said Capt. Borum saw that all passengers were supplied with life belts—"for emergency."

THEY LOOKED DEATH IN THE EYE IN SHIP CRASH

Survivors of the crew of the Merchants and Miners ship Grecian as they were landed at the Hoosac Tunnel docks today from the liner City of Chattanooga, which sank the Grecian off Block Island yesterday. The survivors and the passengers and crew of the Chattanooga were called as witnesses before the steamboat inspectors' inquiry at the Appraisers' Stores. All survivors praised the heroism of Chattanooga's personnel in crisis.

CAPT. BORUM IS SILENT ON HEROISM

"I Did the Best I Could!" All the Skipper Will Say as Survivors Land Here

"I simply did the best I could after the accident happened."

The tall, slight man in the gray suit under the straw hat shrugged his shoulders and dismissed "the accident" like that.

You might have thought he was one of the proverbial "passing motorists" telling how he drove the victim to the hospital.

Except that he stood on the bridge of a ship.

He stood on the bridge of the Savannah liner City of Chattanooga this morning as the vessel warped into Hoosac dock, Charlestown, and remarked quietly that he had done the best he could. Had he done less there were 32 men on the decks below him who would not be alive today.

Introducing—Capt. L. P. Borum, master of the Chattanooga. A dapper gentleman in civies, ready for a shore leave that must be taken up explaining to steamboat inspectors why he shouldn't be called a hero for his rescue of all but four of the freighter Grecian's crew after the Chattanooga had rammed her off Block Island yesterday.

MUCH IN 8 MINUTES

He's maybe 46, maybe 50. His skin is tanned by long years of exposure to the weather and his eyes have crows' feet at the corners, from squinting into sunlight and darkness across a ship's bow.

"I did the best I could," he said.

In eight minutes after his ship had rammed the Grecian he had rescued all that were to be rescued, ascertained the damage to his own vessel, quieted his own passengers, set an example of courage and seamanship for his own crew—all the while keeping the Chattanooga's bow in the hole in the Grecian's side so she would not sink until all life had been saved.

"I was on the bridge with the second officer at the time of the crash. We saw the Grecian two minutes before we struck.

"I have no idea how fast the Grecian was going. We were at reduced speed and were sounding fog warnings.

"We struck amidships on the port side just aft the stack. The impact was slight, but how went in about three feet. The sea was moderate, but there was a heavy fog.

"The other ship floated 13 minutes after the crash. Lines were made fast to the other ship and most of the Grecian's crew came hand over hand to the bow of the Chattanooga. I ordered reduced speed to keep our bow as close to the hole as possible, keeping some sea out.

AND THAT'S ALL

"I ordered two lifeboats over the side to pick up anybody who fell in. They were in charge of Ilas Kent, first officer. He picked up three men.

"When we saw the Grecian was going to sink we cut the lines. I believe those lost were killed in the crash rather than drowned.

"The passengers had gone below. Hardly any were aware of the crash. They were prepared for an emergency call. There was no excitement. All the rescues were completed in eight minutes. That's all, gentlemen—and now, if you'll excuse me . . ."

It remained for others to tell

LYNN CHIEF BARS 8 MAGAZINES

Declaring them to be "absolutely indecent and too rotten to be sold in any city," Police Chief James H. Broad placed a ban today in Lynn on eight nationally-known magazines.

"This order is permanent," he said in his order forbidding sale of the magazines, "and the first dealer who sells one in Lynn will be arrested immediately."

According to Chief Broad, he has received many complaints about the magazines he barred, some of the complaints being from clergymen and church workers.

The magazines are of the type now in popularity, with cartoons and risque headlines and stories.

SENT FIRST NEWS OF SEA DISASTER

Edward W. Garcia, wireless operator of the Savannah liner City of Chattanooga, who stuck to his post for hours after the Grecian crash, telling of the rescue of the crew, a dozen of whom were injured, and of the loss in the sea disaster of four men from the Grecian's crew.

CONRY TO START LIGHT SIGNALS

Traffic Commissioner Conry and other city officials will dedicate the new $27,000 extension to the traffic light system tomorrow at Massachusetts ave. and Tremont st., South End.

One "arm" of the new section extends from that point to Berkeley and Tremont sts., the other to Southampton and Massachusetts ave.

"Death corners" at West Newton and Tremont sts. and Massachusetts ave. and Washington st. are protected in the extension.

NORMA LAUGHS AT NEW LOVE

Paris, May 28 (INS)—Norma Talmadge and George Jessel arrived simultaneously in Paris from the Riviera today, with the screen star emphatic in denials of an impending engagement.

"It sounds to me that I am going to marry Mr. Jessel," she declared.

"It's silly to say I'm going to marry anybody. I am not divorced and even if I am divorced I am not going to marry again."

Miss Talmadge said Jessel was returning to the United States shortly. She plans a month's stay at Marianbad.

'JAFSIE' READY TO QUIT BECKET

Becket, May 28—The stay of Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" in the Lindbergh case, at the Center Pond cottage of Walter Goodwin here was believed drawing to a close today.

It was learned that the visit of the New York educator has been unproductive, and that his host is anxious to return to his Bronx interests.

Dr. Condon's family telephoned, requesting him to cease all discussion of the case.

Reports that telephone lines had been cut to prevent "Jafsie" from communication with Pittsfield were refuted by Chief Sullivan of that city today, who said the wires were cut by a thief.

Although he already has two guns, Dr. Condon asked Pittsfield authorities for a permit to carry a weapon. He was advised to apply to local officials.

Amelia Earhart, 16, Passed Exams With Flying Colors

St. Paul, Minn., May 28 (AP)—"Amelia Earhart, 16 years old," reads a report card in the St. Paul public school files.

It reveals that the student of 1913, now Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, and first woman to fly the Atlantic alone, received that year a 94 in German, 87 in physics, 92 in English and 91 in Latin.

She lived here one year, coming with her family from Des Moines, and later moved to Chicago.

Earle Larrimore to Wed Selena Royle

Philadelphia, May 28 (AP)—Earle Larrimore, one of the stars appearing her in "Mourning Becomes Electra," and Miss Selena Royle, feature player in stage productions, obtained a marriage license today. Larrimore said no date had been set for the wedding.

PROBE OF SHIP CRASH BEGUN

Representatives of the federal steamboat service conferred today with members of the crew of the freighter Grecian, sunk off Block Island in a collision with the Savannah liner, City of Chattanooga.

To determine where blame for the collision rests steamboat inspectors will have a hearing at the Appraisers Stores today and tomorrow.

Capt. Oscar Haines and John Stewart, local inspectors, will be in charge of the proce.

A report of the testimony given by crews of both vessels will be forwarded to the Providence office of the steamboat service, in whose jurisdiction the crash occurred.

Landlady of 'Love Pastor' Comes to His Defense

London, May 28 (INS)—In a strange contrast to the parade of men and women who have taken the stand in Consistory Court almost daily during the last two months to accuse him, a witness rallied to the defense of Rev. Harold Francis Davidson here today.

The witness was Mrs. Jessie Walton, landlady of the rooming house where Barbara Harris, 19-year-old tea shop waitress, lived for some time.

She was summoned to disprove the prosecution's contention that for three months "on and off" the elevated rector of Stiffkey Church, Norfolk, slept in Miss Harris' room.

Mrs. Walton, out of the landlady, reiterated his mother's statement. He said he had seen the rector kissing his mother, his father and his sister.

John Beach, an actor, testified that Davidson often visited his home, kissing Mrs. Beach "on the cheek or the side of her head." He said he was neither resentful nor suspicious over such attentions.

28 DRY RAIDS IN CHICAGO DRIVE

Chicago, May 28 (AP)—Twenty-eight speakeasies were raided by federal prohibition agents last night in the heaviest campaign of recent weeks.

In the trail of 28 raids came 28 arrests, reports here were part of a drive to "dry up" the city for the conventions next month.

A. E. Aman, deputy prohibition administrator, however, described the raids and arrests of bartenders and operator as "routine" and said they had no connection with any prevention campaign. Other enforcement officials asserted that the drives would not be abated.

OLIVE BORDEN'S MATE INDICTED

New York, May 28—Unable to gaze upon Theodore I. Spector in the flesh, the Westchester County Grand Jury looked at his picture and then indicted the Paterson, N. J. broker for bigamy because of his marriage in March, 1931, to Olive Borden, former screen star.

Dist. Atty. Coyne refused to reveal the jury's action, but it was learned a true bill had been voted after Spector's photograph was identified by the town clerk and justice of the peace of Harrison, N. Y., where he married Miss Borden.

The grand jury refused to indict May 12, when Mrs. Pearl Haworth Spector, Buffalo beautician and first wife of the broker, failed to produce a picture of him for identification.

Girl's Caller Shot Through Window

New York May 28 (AP)—A bullet crashed through a window today and struck Milton Hansburg, 25, as he sat on a sofa talking to Miss Gladys Matzke, 19, in her Brooklyn home.

She told police she knew no reason why any one should want to shoot him. He suffered a serious wound in the back.

Saracens Will Oppose Crusaders

Chicago, May 28 (AP)—A new organization called the Saracens has been formed here in support the Eighteenth Amendment.

Louis E. Laflin, Jr., one of the organizers, said an active campaign would be started soon in opposition to the Crusaders, an anti-prohibition group.

V. F. W. POPPY SALE IS ON

Poppies bloomed today in Boston streets, for it was "Poppy Day" of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the annual drive to aid disabled veterans.

On nearly every downtown street corner pretty girls were stationed to help the drive—and, of course, in the mid-blocks where it didn't matter, the homely veterans themselves carried on.

All funds from the sale will be utilized by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for relief of the disabled war veterans in this terrain.

Marathon Dancers Get Rest in Cells

New York, May 27 (INS)—A night in a police station gave 16 young men and women "Marathon dancers" their first real rest in about two months, but when they awoke today they faced arraignment in court charged with taking part in an "unhealthful spectacle."

They were the survivors of Jack Curley's Marathon. When other means failed to stop the exhausted couples, police stepped in.

EASTERN HORSE CLUB RACE MEET IN JUNE

Big Entry List for Country Club Event

The 424 spring meet of the Eastern Horse Club at the Country Club, Brookline, will be held on Wednesday, June 15 and Friday, June 17. On Saturday all will move to Raceland, the estate of Mr. John Macomber, in Framingham Center, where the 6th annual race meeting will be held.

The officers of the Eastern Horse Club this year, under whose management the race meeting is held and sanctioned by the hunt committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association are Mr. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., president; Mr. John R. Macomber, vice-president; Mr. Augustus F. Goodwin, vice-president and chairman of stewards; Mr. Sumner Pingree, treasurer, and Mr. William E. Chamberlain, executive secretary. While only the preliminary entries for the big stakes have closed, they are equally as large as in any year. The supplementary entries for stakes close June 1 and entries for the other races, June 3.

13 in Steeplechase

To date there are 13 entries in the 3rd running of the Challenge Cup, which comes the first day at Brookline. This is a steeplechase for hunters duly registered with the hunt committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association and carries a purse of $1000. The rider of the winner will receive a piece of plate presented by Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.

There were 21 entries for the 224 running of The Country Club grand annual. This race carries a purse of $2000.

The 17th running of the National Hunt Cup has 13 entries. This is steeplechase is about three miles for a purse of $2000. Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Goodwin will present a piece of plate to the rider of the winner.

The Chamblet Memorial has 26 entries. What a race there will be for that beautiful cup presented by Mrs. Lathrop Brown, as well as the $1000 purse, to add to the luster of the victory. Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Bigelow will present a replica of the cup to the owner of the winner.

Boxholders

The Raceland Cup has 23 entries and this feature race at Mr. Macomber's beautiful course on Saturday should provide plenty of action. Mr. Macomber's new stable has been completed, but this time of brick fire-proof construction. It will be recalled that it was destroyed by fire just after the races there two years ago. A small admission fee will be charged at Raceland this year for the first time.

Among those who have taken boxes already include Miss Eleonora Sears, Mr. Hugh Bancroft, Mr. Richard Danielson, Mr. Sumner Pingree, Mr. A. F. Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. Lispenard Mc. E. McGregor, Mr. John R. Macomber, Mr. Baynard Tuckerman, Jr., Mrs. Fred S. Moseley and Mrs. Robert G. Shaw, 2nd. Mr. Nason B. Hamlin is in charge of the box sale this year as in 19 Congress st.

Junior Leaguers to Be Models

Junior League girls will model costumes designed by Miss Helen Crosby, at the benefit concert of the New England Council of Goodwill Industries on the Bradlee estate in Jamaica Plain on June 11. Included among these girls are the Misses Hallie Wolcott, Mary Porter, Barbara Young, Kitty Talbot, Elizabeth Bessenon, Elizabeth Wells, Mrs. Virginia Taylor, in charge. Also the following, Mrs. Charles Terry Collens, Mrs. Decker Snow, and Mrs. Ralph Kellog.

Tables may be reserved for those who will take tea. There will be a Punch and Judy show and trained dogs also as an attraction. Tickets for the tea tables may be had from Miss Francis R. Porter, 50 Rives st. The concert by Smith's Band will be led by Edwin Franko Goldman, who will come over from New York especially for the occasion.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Arnold Bennett, who knew better than any of us how to live on twenty-four hours a day, was just the man to keep a complete diary all his life.

He loved detail. Nothing was too minute to escape his vigilant eye. Two inconsequential women in a restaurant, overheard in whispered conversation, attract his attention. Potential drama may be there. One uses the phrase, "your mother," for "your dear mother." That interests Bennett, the novelist, and perhaps, years hence, out of some cubbyhole in his teeming brain these words will be drawn by him.

It was because he saw two old sisters once in a Paris cafe that he wrote "The Old Wives' Tale." They were the nucleus around which one of the greatest novels of our time was written. And, doubtless, they never knew it.

* * *

He began a series of diaries, or journals, in 1896, when he was scarcely known. He was then reviewing books, having forsaken the law after a hurried taste of it, and had begun his novel, "In the Shadow," which he had taken to John Lane of the Bodley Head.

He was interested in everything and every one. He met John Buchan, at that time reader for Lane, then only 23 years of age, and Lane had shown Bennett the report on his manuscript. It was not altogether favorable, but that did not prevent Bennett from liking the young man.

"The Journal of Arnold Bennett," which will eventually include three massive volumes, will be issued in this country by the Viking Press.

* * *

Some passages, of little interest to American readers, have been omitted, but we are assured that nothing has been removed which throws new light on Bennett's striking personality. No one will feel obligated to read all these notes and comments on men and women of his early days, on what he has to say of the little fellows of literature and art who came and went like shadows on a screen.

There are high spots, but there are others which will interest only "the passionate few," to quote a phrase of Bennett's own. The miracle is how he found the time and energy to commit to paper so many trivial thoughts. In that meticulous handwriting he jotted down all his wandering ideas, and it is a pity that no facsimile page is here included, with marginal notes.

He had a habit of making fancy initials, and I have seen original pages of his books which were things of beauty.

* * *

It is amusing, therefore, to find that he did not really love to work. No man, he contended, could care for the laborious business of writing; yet what an inveterate writer he was!

The lives of all his friends fascinated him. In 1904 he dined with Julie de Gallienne, then married to the poet, and he reports what she said to him one evening in Paris. "She talked to me with much freedom about her husband. She said she found she could do nothing more for him, and, as they differed about the desirability of living in New York, she had left him, and they corresponded, and so on.

"She described how charming he was when he was charming, and how diverting it was to live with such a wayward artistic temperament. There was one thing she could say—he had never bored her. However, she had had enough of the artistic temperament."

* * *

There were many days when Bennett turned out no less than five thousand words! And he used no typewriter; and this did not include the words he poured out in his journal. He felt all the natural discouragement of the professional man of letters, and he was often his own severest critic.

His industry was endless, and he seems never to have been too weary to rewrite whole chapters and scenes when they did not please him after the first typed copy had been placed before him. He would sit in some cafe over a cup of chocolate and cogitate for hours on a chapter of a book, and finally drag himself to its composition after the complete outline had formed itself in his head.

And one must recall that even while he was so busy with his own novels and plays he found the time to read the work of his contemporaries and to pass judgment on them. He admired Stevenson to excess and Kipling in spots, and of Alice Meynell he says, after receiving a book of her essays, "She writes the same now as she has always written." Ambitious to produce play, he found himself humanly jealous of Somerset Maugham's success, with three comedies running simultaneously in New York.

As long ago as May, 1896 he found a story by Henry James in Chapman's. "His mere ingenuity, not only in construction but in expression, is becoming tedious, though one cannot but admire. Also his colossal cautiousness in statement is very trying. If he would only now and then contrive to write a sentence without a qualifying clause!"

He saw small worth in George Eliot. Critics had called her style "masculine." "Quite wrong!" he cries out in his journal. "It is downright, aggressive sometimes rude, but genuinely masculine, never. On the contrary it is transparently feminine—feminine in its lack of restraint, its weirdness, and the utter absence of feeling for form which characterizes it." More to his taste among women writers were the Brontes and Jane Austen.

* * *

It will be interesting to read the succeeding volumes of this trilogy, when we shall doubtless get pictures of people known to us all. The second volume will come in the fall, and the last one in the spring of 1933.

'DEATH AND PROFITS' EXPOSES FINANCES OF WAR

By GILBERT SELDES

THE BOOK called "Death and Profits," by Seymour Waldman, is not gay reading; neither were the casualty lists in 1918. In a sense, you have your choice between the two, for Mr. Waldman is discussing one of the serious efforts to avert war and comes to the conclusion that nearly everything done so far to take the profit out of war-making has been haphazard, hypocritical and completely futile. It is an angry book, a book which despises all half measures; and again you have your choice. For the dead in the war are never half dead; and the half dead, the maimed and blinded would often rather he dead. Mr. Waldman attended all the sessions of the War Policies Commission, which discussed ways and means to equalize the burden of war—particularly to do away with the unfair distinction between the man who gets killed for $30 a month and the man who gets rich at $30 or $300 a day. The book, just published by Brewer, Warren and Putnam, is the record of his disappointment.

GILBERT SELDES

'Take the Profits'

Mr. Bernard Baruch was an early mover in this propaganda; the American Legion seemed at one time to be anxious to "take the profits out of war." Nothing was fairer in our eyes than the proposal to draft the dollar if you draft the men; and in the back of our minds lay the hope that if no man could make money out of war no one would be anxious to push us into war. We had no proofs that anyone was pushing us for the purpose of private gain; patriotism, covers annual statements impenetrably. But we know, after it is all over, that profits ranging from 60 to 800 per cent were made in the war years in certain metal industries, and I recall figures even higher in other fields—sometimes as much as 2000 per cent profit. Isn't it reasonable that with that prospect before them men and women might think war a good thing?

Is 7 Per Cent Fair or Good?

Mr. Waldman's point is that all the proposals so far made miss their objective. Compared with 200 per cent, 7 per cent seems a mild profit, and 7 per cent is what the head of the American Legion declared satisfactory to his followers. Mr. Waldman notes that today the guarantee of 7 per cent would be a god-send to thousands of industrialists. A "fair return" on investment in war-time strikes us as an improvement over extravagant profits, but Mr. Waldman shows us that the computation of a fair return might land us in a fog of litigation out of which industry would come off pretty well. Finally, the commission recommended "that no constitutional amendment to permit the taking of private property in time of war without compensation be considered by Congress." So you still may draft the man, but not the factory.

The book is well-documented; you will find scandals, incompetence, graft—but resting on one side timidity and helpless idealism on the other. And, naturally, the clear voice of those who know that you cannot plan to prevent profit in war-time unless you plan your whole national life.

Is Reduction Improvement?

I think Mr. Waldman has been exasperated beyond bearing and is a little extreme. There is good in scaling down, if you cannot actually abolish war profits. In 1916 the heavy industries of the United States were making a tolerable fortune out of war supplies sent to Europe. If the government had had power then to control profits, and if that power had been rigidly exercised, profits after we entered the war might have been less instead of greater. A few months ago some people talked of a boycott against Japan—a measure which might have led to war. If all profit above that of the best three years were taxed 95 per cent, would even desperate industries care so much for a declaration?

Publicity Value

Even as he attacks the results of the commission's work, Mr. Waldman unconsciously testifies to its chief importance. It is quite true that great capitalists do not want their money and their factories confiscated; it is also true that human beings do not want their lives confiscated. But as they dodge and haggle, as they offer compromises, the defenders of the present system are confessing that there is a connection between death and profits, that "every man killed on the field turns in a hundred thousand dollars to the cashier. Proof is still wanting that our government kills the man in order to insure the profit; but proof is not wanting that when the men are killed the profit comes.

Not for Pacifists

Hammering this truth home is a good job, and the War Department has been forced to do it. Until 1929 the profits continued to mount; now they are melted, and we see even more clearly to what extent war does not pay. But it pays temporarily, and so long as it pays there will be hard, patriotic men who will want it to continue. They will, oddly, join hands with the pacifists. For the pacifists, taken in their purest state, are opposed to war without opposing the causes that lead to war; and the profiteers are in favor of war, and hardly know how to bring war about. A really good profiteer would have had us in a war by 1930 at the latest.

NAT. CATHOLIC CONFERENCE SPEAKS

In a document widely distributed by the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Department of Social Order, a better distribution of goods is called for, and a larger share by the workers in the tools of production.

Such paragraphs occur as:

"Steady work; money enough from work to supply all needs and an honest livelihood and to uplift men to a higher level of prosperity and culture; the people sharing in the ownership of what they work with; and an intelligently planned, harmonious economic life—that is required by Catholic social teaching."

"The aim is an organized social order which is built upon the natural grouping of men in their organized occupations and is helped by an active government. The whole is to be animated by intelligence, of course, but by morality also. It will distribute both income and ownership widely and plan industry for a higher level of prosperity and culture for all. Used wisely, this enables men to give greater honor and glory to God and lead better lives. Such a social order, in its closely knit groupings and in its spirit of justice and charity, will be comparable to the Mystical Body of Christ."

"The good distribution of income, the good distribution of wealth itself and the intelligent guiding of the whole process of producing, transporting and distributing goods are the important things. Steady work would then follow. And, assuming morality and intelligence, a combination of organization and government is the means to follow."

HOLY CROSS CEMETERY

For the convenience of the large number of the faithful anxious to remember their deceased loved ones on Memorial Day, Monday, May 30, three masses will be celebrated in Holy Cross (Cemetery) Chapel, Malden.

These masses will be at 9, 10 and 11 o'clock. There will be special car service to the cemetery gate for all services.

A short sermon will be delivered at each mass on the subject "Memorial Day, Its Meaning for Catholics." All who wish to receive Holy Communion in the chapel will have an opportunity to do so.

WHIST—COMMUNION

Mrs. George Cuddy will be the hostess at the regular whist and bridge at St. Joseph's Home, 221 Centre st., Dorchester, on Tuesday evening, May 31. She will be assisted by the Dorchester committee.

Monday morning, June 6, at 9 o'clock, is the time arranged for the annual Communion breakfast, to be held at the Home. Reservations may be secured by calling Mrs. R. C. Hines, 20 Sudan st., Dorchester (telephone Col. 4379), or Mrs. James Conboy, 20 Silloway st., Dorchester (telephone Tal. 2194).

TRUTH GUILD

Last Sunday the Catholic Truth Guild's season of out-door presentation of Catholic Doctrine was opened by the Chairman, William E. Kerrish, on Boston Common.

It was declared that the subject of the day was timely in that exposition tries to make amends for what the Holy Father has named in his last Encyclical, "a lamentable fact that millions of men . . . cry out against God and religion."

The general topic for this Sunday is "Religion." George Hogan will speak on "Religion, Its Nature and Necessity"; John Breen on "Uniformity of Religion"; E. Dupre, Jr., "Man's Duties to God"; Benjamin McDonald on "Prayer—Its Nature and Value."

George P. Lordan will act as chairman.

CATHOLIC RADIO PERIOD

Broadcast from Station WAAC (The Shepard Stores, Boston) every Sunday afternoon from 1 to 2 o'clock.

Program for Sunday, May 29:

Speaker: Rev. Martin P. Harney, S. J., professor of history at Boston College.

Subject: "Two Great Catholic Historians."

Question Box: Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., of Weston College.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

From June 3 to June 10 Catholics all over the world will be united in a holy alliance of prayer and reparation, begging God mercifully to grant relief from the economic and other ills which today are causing so much sorrow and anxiety among men of all nations.

It is the earnest desire of His Eminence the Cardinal that men and women of goodwill everywhere, no matter what country, even those not members of the Catholic Church, will join in this vast spiritual movement.

Dr. Conrad Will Answer 3 Questions

At the Park Street Church tomorrow evening Dr. A. Z. Conrad will answer three questions which are constantly being asked. What can the church do to raise the standards of society? What can the schools do to bring boys and girls to higher standards of character? What can the courts do to raise the moral standards of youth? The preacher has his own ideas of what is being done and what may yet be accomplished through these three channels.

Tomorrow morning Dr. Conrad will preach on "Origin and Destiny Have Neither Explanation nor Reality Except as Referred to God as Both Cause and Control. In the evening "Flashes From an Unseen Forge Fashioning Life on An Anvil of Providence."

Will Speak

The Rev. Hilda L. Ives, town and county secretary for the Massachusetts Federation of Churches will address the Union Church conference at Greendale, Mass., next Wednesday afternoon.

'Lindbergh Baby Has Not Died in Vain'

The Rev. Laurence Breed Walker of the Buena Vista Church, Roxbury, has something he wants to say about Col. Lindbergh and his lost child. Next "ednesday evening Dr. Walker will point out some of the positive results from this national tragedy. His lecture will be free. At 6:30 there will be served a lobster supper at minimum cost to which all are invited.

Tomorrow morning the sermon topic at the Buena Vista Church is "The Republic Cannot Retreat," and in the evening, "Is American Brotherhood a Delusion?" Mr. Walker asks the public to take note of his colorful and attractive church calendars. He is one out of many ministers who believes that the weekly announcement sheet for church activities should be the result of careful thought and expert advice. He calls for color, variety, typographical harmony and stimulating phraseology.

Church Army in Service on Common

Tomorrow the Greater Boston Federation will put on an unusual program for its service on the Common. It will have commissioners to of the Church Army in U. S. A., which has its headquarters in New York, and the training school in Providence, R. I. They are laymen who have dedicated their lives to evangelistic work, preaching for the most part in the open air. Those who will take part tomorrow will be Capt. B. Frank Mountford, Capt. F. H. Board, Capt. C. L. Corder and Cadets Graham, Sherwell, Lush, Kuhn, Tichenor and Aukerman. The meeting will begin at 2:45 and continue most of the afternoon.

Gossip About People You Know

SEEKS CHAIRMANSHIP

Charles F. Riordan, acting chairman of the Democratic State Committee, was conspicuous in a group who saw Governor Ely escort in Frank J. Donahue as Justice of the superior courts. "Charlie" was arrayed in cutaway and silk topper and carried a blackthorn cane.

Riordan, by the way, is actively promoting his candidacy for the chairmanship of the state committee. He is mailing to the members some correspondence that took place between himself and "Al" Smith.

JOB FOR FULLER

It is understood that if Frank A. Goodwin wins the Republican nomination for governor and later wins the election, he will offer the post of minister to Switzerland to former Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

SEEKS NEW HONORS

Apparently former State Senator "Billy" Francis, of Charlestown, plans to seek further political honors. Not only is he busy renewing contacts in his own ward but he is a frequent visitor to East Boston. During this week he has attended more than a score of social and fraternal meetings on Noddle Island. His activity outside his own district indicates early announcement of his candidacy for either State Senate or Governor's Council.

RONAYNE TO WED

John Ronayne of the street commissioner headquarters in city hall and Miss Mary G. Larson of Arlington are to be married in Holy Cross Cathedral on June 6.

BANQUET FOR TUCK

Friends of Whitfield Tuck, prominent in the Massachusetts Democracy, are to tender him a testimonial banquet in Hopkins Banquet Hall, Washington st., on June 11 in observance of his fifty-fifth birthday. Members of the committee arranging the affair are John Kiggen, James A. "Jerry" Watson, and James F. Heslin.

GLYNN TO SPEAK

Chairman Theodore A. Glynn, of the city street commission, will be Memorial Day orator at exercises of Thomas J. Roberts Post, American Legion, in Dunbar ave. playground, Dorchester, at 10 a. m. on Monday.

UNION CHURCH MOVEMENT IS PROPOSED

Delegates from 50 or more union churches in Massachusetts will assemble this coming week at the Greendale People's Church, Worcester for the 21st annual conference. A number of prominent clergymen from Greater Boston will take part in discussions. Chief among these will be the Rev. Kenneth MacArthur, executive secretary for The Massachusetts Federation of Churches, who will speak Wednesday morning on "The Churches Working Together." "A Pastor's experience with a Sunday School" is a topic to be discussed by the Rev. Albert H. Gage, President of the Massachusetts Council of Religious Education.

The Rev. Hilda L. Ives, town and county secretary for the federation with headquarters at 4 Park st., will speak at 3:30 in the afternoon on "The Missionary Program of the Church." The Rev. James C. Simpson of the Watertown Federated Church will open the session.

Denounce Hypnotism at "Scientist" Church

"Evil is not power. It is a mockery of strength, which ere long betrays its weakness and fails, never to rise"—a quotation from Science and Health, to be read in all Churches of Christ Scientist, tomorrow.

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow.

The golden text is: "Do they not err that devise evil? But mercy and truth shall be to them that devise good." Proverbs 14:22.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Your influence for good depends upon the weight you throw into the right scale. The good you do and embody gives you the only power obtainable. Evil is a lie not power. It is a mockery of strength, which ere long betrays its weakness and fails, never to rise." (P. 192.)

Vets Out in Force at Dudley St. Baptist

At the great memorial service, at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow at Old Dudley St. Baptist Church of Roxbury, the Roger Wolcott Camp, No. 23, of United States Spanish War Veterans and the Women's Auxiliary, No. 22, will be guests of honor. They will be escorted by the Roger Wolcott Auxiliary Bugle and Drum Corp. Patriotic and memorial music will be stressed by the fine mixed quartet, soloists and choir of the church. Pastor Proctor Brooks will speak upon the subject, "The Men Who Fought."

At the morning service, 10:30 o'clock, the Concord male quartet and junior choir will render, "Land of Hope and Glory." "The Vacant Chair," "Boys in Blue" and "Marching With the Heroes." Pastor Brooks will address the church on "American's Memorial Challenge." One of the features of the morning service will be a period "In memoriam" of members of the church who passed to their reward during the past year.

A CHURCH FOR ALL PEOPLE

The Present Belongs to Youth . . . What Is He Doing With It?

Harvard Prof. Talks in Philadelphia

Social workers from all parts of the country connected with church and religious societies met last week at the Friends' Meetinghouse in Philadelphia for an annual conference.

Mr. Clarence Pickett, head of the Friends' Service with headquarters in Philadelphia, was elected president to take the place of Rt. Rev. Charles E. Gilbert. The conference discussed seriously economic conditions throughout the country. Especial attention was given to modern industry. Professor Sumner H. Slichter of the Harvard School of Business Administration, declared his ideas of the ineffectiveness of both political and economic organizations to act in our industrial civilization, especially in our present emergency.

"Congress," he said, "has no adequate incentives upon the individual members for national action, and is therefore clumsy and dangerously slow, although its members are as capable and public-spirited as the rest of us."

He termed the present actions of the American Legionaires in Washington "a racket besides which Al Capone is a piker."

Study Mass Farming

Professor and Mrs. Harry F. Ward, who have been in Russia since September last, have been visiting collective farms and industrial centers in the south, says the Christian Advocate of New York. They plan to spend the Spring months in the Crimea, returning to the United States in the summer.

Church Heads in Call for Coal Mine Study

A report on conditions in Kentucky coal mines brought a committee of 21 leading New York clergymen, including Harry Emerson Fosdick, E. Parkes Cadman and Bishop Francis J. McConnell to pass a resolution asking for a senatorial investigation. The ministers and others with them who made up the committee were so moved by what they read in a report submitted to them that they immediately asked the United States Senate to pass the Costigan-Cutting resolution, which calls for the investigation of the Southeastern Kentucky coal fields.

The report which has just been made public was the work of a group of investigators headed by the Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, executive secretary of the Protestant Episcopal department of Christian social service.

The report shows an utter disregard for the rights of free speech and of free assemblage in a region where—the report says—the average wage is about $5, with thousands entirely without work.

Ford Hall Negroes Give Barn Play

An unusual play called "Earth" will be given at the Barn on Joy st. next Thursday and Friday by the Ford Hall Forum Dramatic Society, which is their third annual production. The play is staged and directed by Ralf Coleman and is presented by a cast of Boston's best-known Negro players. The theme of the play deals with Christianity and Voodooism.

Young People's Union Has Picnic

Today at Babson Park the Young People's Religious Union of the American Unitarian Association will hold a picnic. The young people will gather after lunch and spend the remaining hours in a general good time of games and good fellowship.

Officers, elected last evening at the annual meeting, are: President, the Rev. Donn M. Greeley of Cambridge; secretary, Miss Mary Denison of Framingham, and treasurer, G. Melville Chase of Dorchester.

Interest in Friends' Conference Grows

A half a hundred men and women have signified already their desire to attend the first international conference to be held in Wellesley

In Memoriam

From One Who Calls Aloud

UNDER the sod he lies on some green knoll, or under one of a hundred thousand crossed bits of wood. As breezes in the night his voice comes through—and I hear it in my dreams and as I lie awake.

"Remember me, Oh friend—this is the day and this the time for all those that I love to think and listen with brows deep knit.

"Why am I here rotting away, and you there, a part of glorious spring with green things all about making the old world beautiful again? Why am I here cut off from what I might have been, from fatherhood, home with little folks about my knee?

"If by my death, gouged as I was by bayonette twisted in my heart, I have made my greatest sacrifice to bring about a world of peace for millions yet to come, then I will lie content and say no more.

"But such seems not the case—you will agree with me in that. Has hate been strangled by these hands of mine? Has reason risen out of fury and the awful screech of shells? Are men no longer boys who foolishly swell with the pride of state, ready to fly at foreign throats for fancied wrongs or even slights that have reality?

"Wars in Orient and on other distant fields are but the work of foolish beasts devoid of power to reason. Their guns, their hand grenade, their gas are but the claws and teeth of creatures without power to speak. Those bursting shells gleaming lurid in the blackened skies are eyes that have no sober thought behind.

"We ask that men be friends—that nations rather not be butchery and fratracide, cruel and cunning, seeking to devour, but with determination to remake a world of dread and fright, and passions primitive, until the senseless growl of war has changed to sober talk of men who have learned to know and to respect each other's rights.

"There is enough on this green earth for all if men of wisdom learn to plan. Give up this war idea—and bend the energies, the brains, the finer will toward harmony, and achievement of the human race.

"You who stoop low and drop a tear today on mold and clay, take heed of prayers uttered by the dead—or horrors worse than yet have been will cumber all this earth."

Next week an editorial written by the Rev. A. Z. Conrad will appear on this page.

DRAMA DISCUSSED By Nicholas Young ◆ Harleigh Schultz REVIEWS THE STATE

As the Year Passes in Review

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Boiled down to strict essentials, any theatrical season means collectively, as many weeks of legitimate drama. Some of it, of course, is touched with melody, some with mystery and a great lot of it almost wholly indefinable. This brings us not too merrily to the season of 1931-1932, recently terminated with no flare of trumpets. It was not a good season, as you count the weeks; it was convincingly inadequate as you measure its results with the better and brighter years now held in fond memory. The drama of 1931-1932 in aggregate has been nothing to brag about; there were flashes of real promise, but those were visionary and entirely devoid of substance.

The annual statistician of this department, having arrived and dug into what has been going on, finds that from mid-August to the warmer days of May, there have been approximately 187 active weeks on the Boylston-Tremont street battle front. The word "approximately" is used in a purely advisory sense, for there were slight upcomings in smart entertainment that survived only the fraction of a week. Yet, naturally, they should be counted. Included, too, in these 187—or so—weeks are 31½ weeks of motion pictures which had braved the terrors of downtown production at the usual box office prices. "Grand Hotel," for example, is now rounding out its fifth week at the Majestic, and may be expected to remain for some time to come.

Reducing the fading season to unromantic weeks and their fractions, you discover the playhouses about this order, the figure on the right being weeks of operation:

Copley	Wilbur 14½
Colonial 9½	Tremont 9
Shubert 9½	Majestic 31½
Plymouth 7	Little 7
Hollis 7	Repertory 7
Boston 14	Hull 7

It will be seen that insofar as you depend upon the Boston favorite temples for theatrical refreshment, the humble Copley leads the field.

In breaking up the season into further classification, it is discovered that long runs were not in any sense a rule of the hour. "Rhapsody in Black," a revue in high color, was the leader with six meagre weeks—not much to talk about, but still a pace-setting record. As the distinguishing character in entertainment, the season's record shows the following figures, those on the right representing weeks:

Comedy 11	Melodrama 7
Drama 10	Mystery 7
Musical 9	Comic Opera 5
Comedy 9	Miscellaneous 5
Operetta 8	Miscellaneous 4
Revue 7	Revue 3
Farce 7	Farce 1
Farce 7	Comedy 1

Against this season of 187 and a fraction of weeks of drama, we have the record of a year ago when the seasonal total ran to 213 weeks, and the still further record of 1929-30, when about 200 weeks of good legitimate fare were checked off in favor of the city's eleven operating playhouses.

But the drama, bloody but unbowed, refuses to retreat. The season is not used up for Messrs. Al Droll and Jack Linder, pair whose exploits with "Phantom Cargo" will be shown on the Plymouth stage next Monday. Hard fisted melodrama, they call it. A casual glance at the Friday night rehearsal made the notion convincing.

Ann Corio Will Star in Three Holiday Shows

Ann Corio, called "the most beautiful girl in burlesque," will present her own special midnight show at the Old Howard Theater early Monday morning. One minute after midnight the holiday spirit will prevail. Two more shows on May 30 will bring the Old Howard season to a close and to Ann Corio will go the honor of being the star who will close the famous theater.

DRAMA PICKS UP LOST THREADS FOR ANOTHER FORWARD DASH

Joan Crawford and Lionel Barrymore are on easy terms in "Grand Hotel." (Majestic.)

Conchita Montenegro, lithesome dancer in the new stage show now at the Metropolitan.

Stellar Quality at All Angles in Metropolitan's New Bill

The Met's new show is crammed with class. A stellar array of stage talent, and Ruth Chatterton on screen, give the week's bill rich values. The Boswell Sisters, Conchita Montenegro, a snappy revue, and Fabien Sevitzky's orchestra, make the footlight fare especially good.

"The Rich Are Always With Us" is the Chatterton vehicle. It is sophisticated drama of society folk, its importance as cinema entertainment being chiefly due to the acting, the intelligent support, and the smart direction of that expert Alfred E. Green. Miss Chatterton is cast as the wife of a "cheater." John Miljan, her thrust back is to take up with George Brent, here seen as a writer. A divorce is finally achieved, and the audience is given plenty of opportunity to laugh thereafter as the star tries to make up her mind on a choice of two things to wed Brent, or rewed Miljan. This portion of the story is "not so hot," yet Green and the performers hold the interest.

The Boswell Sisters are an amazingly gifted trio. Their radio fame may account for some of the applause one hears, but they sure do make good over the footlights.

Miss Montenegro, seen in a number of movies, reveals an excellent and lively personality, and her dancing is the best seen in a long time. She is featured in the revue, "On the Riviera," an extremely colorful and spirited offering. Mr. Sevitzky leads the band through "Instrumental Rhapsodies," and their ovation is a tribute to the perfection of their work.

All in all, a starry program for the Met!

'The Trial of Vivienne Ware' Proves Brisk Photoplay

Again, Director William K. Howard triumphs. This is a habit of his—to lift his story to the high level of corking good screen fare. His work in "The Trial of Vivienne Ware" is a superb example of the Howard craftsmanship.

Without Howard, this photoplay could easily have become just another murder trial movie. But the deft director's touch gives it a driving tempo; his camera swing from the routine into the unusual, painting new and there, parking a punch by the wayside, then returning to the central theme. The plot itself, except for this treatment, would hardly stand criticism; yet, it seems an impelling motivation, so cleverly are various incidents interwoven to bolster up the narrative. Weak spots are glossed over, and hardly seem noticeable; and clear to the finish the keen efficiency of this ace director is strikingly demonstrated.

The film drama, now at the Paramount and the Uptown, thus is made very entertaining. The cast is a good one above par; but the honors go to Zasu Pitts, who has "stolen" many a picture before this, and to "Skeets" Gallagher.

John Bennett is very fetching and more than satisfies in the acting. But the distribution of laurels finds the bulk going to the director.

Revere Opening

Mayor Andrew A. Casassa will officially open Revere Beach for the 1932 season tonight by touching off the first bomb in an elaborate display of fireworks arranged to mark the occasion. There will be other ceremonies in connection with the opening, starting at 7 p. m. and lasting until midnight. The amusement division of the Revere Chamber of Commerce has been instrumental in bringing several new and novel attractions to the beach this summer. More than $250,000 has been spent in improvements and building new amusements.

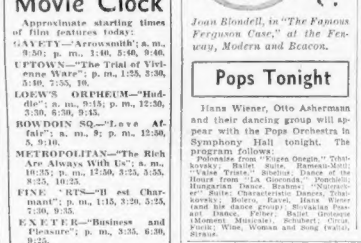
Pops Tonight

Hans Wiener, Otto Ashermann and their dancing group will appear with the Pops Orchestra in Symphony Hall tonight. The program follows:

Polonaise from "Eugen Onegin," Tchaikovsky; Ballet Suite, Rameau-Mottl; "Valse Triste," Sibelius; Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda," Ponchielli; Hungarian Dance, Brahms; "Nutcracker" Suite; Characteristic Dances, Tchaikovsky; Bolero, Ravel; Hans Wiener and his dance group; Slovakian Peasant Dance, Felber; Ballet Grotesque; Moment Musicale, Schubert; Oriental Finale; Wine, Woman and Song (waltz), Strauss.



Joan Blondell, in "The Famous Ferguson Case," at the Fenway, Modern and Beacon.

Revue Changes the Policy

RKO's lavish revue, "Cuban Holiday," is the finest of the "new era show" which are to be presented regularly at the Keith-Boston, when the Keith Golden Jubilee Celebration starts, marking the fiftieth anniversary of B. F. Keith's entrance into the amusement world. The ridiculously dumb dance team of Nelson Clifford and Marie Marion tops the list of artists participating in "Cuban Holiday," which also includes "Three Gobs," O'Hanlon and Zamburi, dancers, Jack Reid, radio tenor, and Chester Hale's Senoritas.

Marie Marion

Outstanding among the many scenes of the revue is the presentation of "Kicking the Gong Around," the entire story of the song being enacted by a cast of fifty. "Minnie the Moocher," "Oh Minnie" and "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead You Rascal You" are other numbers.

The Rhumba plays an important part in the dances.

Excellent Stage and Screen Program at the Orpheum

By HARRIS MORGAN

Excellence is the word this week in the stage and film fare at Loew's Orpheum. Manager Victor J. M. Morris, who packs 'em in with good entertainment, offers a bill that is up to his high standard. The featured photoplay presents Ramon Novarro as an Italian youth who upsets conventions and wins football games at Yale in "Huddle." On the boards is a five-act bill of sterling vaudeville.

The vaudeville bill on the stage, headlined by comedian Bob Murphy, is one of the best offered patrons of the theater this season. The rotund Murphy participates in a humorous melange of comedy, music and dancing with his young son and daughter. The comedian himself appears to be in his usual fine fettle, while his offsprings give indications of attaining stellar heights in vaudeville.

Another highlight of the bill is the appearance of the Roxy Gang favorites in a program of solo and ensemble vocal offerings. The favorites will be remembered as Adelaide De Loca, Alice Julieno, John Griffen and Harold Clyde Wright. Rob Carney has a comedy singing and dancing skit with a number of assistants, and other acts appearing include Fulton and Mack, well known vaudeville athletes, and Greenlee and Rogers, fast colored steppers.

M for Movie, G is Garbo, M, Merit

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Great is Greta of the movies! Again the queues are forming in Massachusetts ave. Good pictures know naught of depression, and M-G-M excellence on screen crammed Loew's State so full of folks last night that a seat for us was playing a needle-in-the-haystack role when we came upon the scene to review "As You Desire Me." It is another Garbo triumph, the Pirandello drama, seen on stage here some months ago, is superbly treated at every point in this production; in our opinion it is vastly superior to its footlight form.

* * *

Miss Garbo, of course, has the Judith Anderson part of the cabaret singer identified by an air that as the long missing wife of his most intimate friend. The performance at the Plymouth is perhaps too recent to require rehearsal of the plot. Be it sufficient to state that the cinema treatment makes the basic motivation essentially different from the play. Pirandello left the question of Zara's true self a matter of doubt, and deliberately so. The drama made no decision; if at the last curtain, the harassed woman walked out of the set, crushed by the evidence against her, it was a moot matter with the audience whether or not she was an impostor, or a victim of cruel fate.

The silver sheet angle is more satisfying, and definitely better "box office." Zara is made an out-and-out masquerader, descending to trickery in order to escape from Salter, the villain of the piece. When the truth later dips in the later revelations at the husband's home, she successfully matches wits with her accusers, and comes out the victor.

* * *

Garbo is magnificent. She dominates. She is at her best. If this is to be her swan song out of Hollywood, which we heartily doubt, then eloquently she sings it. For here is finest thread for her weaving; a woman's toy, a girl of the tavern, she still nourishes a spark of womanhood. Then the transition to the contrasting life and refinement of a villa, with love waiting for her. But evil pursues. The net of circumstance enmeshes her. What a grand chance for emotional range! And Garbo plays each phase to perfection. She has the charm, the subtle power—and the diving fire is in her soul to make her changing being one of conviction. Intriguing the interest and stirring sympathy with the clutch of a mistress of her art that she is.

There are fine fantastic cues to the Pirandello story, but Garbo robs them of disbelief and robes them with reality. That is how great she is.

George Fitzmaurice did a deft job at the directing, and uses all the many advantages of the motion picture to give the production excellence above the stage play. Of the cast Erich Von Stroheim is the villainous cowlicked man de luxe; that was a principal role on stage, and still remains such on screen. Others doing well are Melvyn Douglas, Owen Moore and Rafaela Ottiano.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is stringing out its quality pictures like so many pearls; this is another in the 1932 necklace.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

(Editor's Note: Because the Boswell sisters, three of the sweetest girls in professional life that we've ever had the pleasure of meeting, are sweet favorites of you readers, and because we all admire one-third of the Boswells particularly—for her pluck and joy of living—Cookie Boswell writes our column for us today.)

Songs We Sing

It isn't the easiest thing in the world to put write off a column, but Miss Siemens wants me to just talk about the Boswell sisters and what they do, so I'm going to make a try at it anyhow! Some day Martha, Vet and I hope to visit hundreds of listeners in their homes so as to get a better slant on what they want over the air. At present, we can only judge our work from our fan letters.

Our own preferences are for sweet ballads and "hot" songs. By "hot" I mean fast-moving ones in good rhythmic tempo. We find that most of the songs being written today are not sufficiently deeply emotional. For my solo work I like songs like "All Dressed Up With a Broken Heart."

Mom's Busy

We're all happy to be in Boston at the Metropolitan, and in letting a secret out, I'll tell my readers that while we are in Boston Mom is packing up all our goods and chattels and moving from our W. 55th st. apartment to a cooler place on W. 88th st., right adjoining Central Park.

The Way They Begin:

I guess I have the easiest job of the three of us, because I have no worry about the arrangements for the songs we sing. I guess I'm sort of the boss in just one respect—if I don't like a song, we never sing it. Vet and Martha always agree with me on the types of songs. We have to spend a lot of time rehearsing and arranging new numbers. You know we always start to learn a number backwards—that is, we take the ending first and we work backwards. Then we put it all together and sing it from start to finish. We can speed five hours a day rehearsing, but sometimes when we hit a snag and a flash of inspiration is the way we want it to, Vet takes a nap, I work a little in water colors, and Martha bakes a cake. Then we get back to rehearsing and we find things run a lot more smoothly.

They Collect 'em, Too!

Martha handles the fan mail. At first she used to answer it all herself, but since it has gotten heavier she dictates answers to the secretaries. We try to write quite a few people write and ask us for autographed photos, and just lately we've taken to asking them to send us a photograph, to send us a snapshot of themselves. We put the pictures in our scrap album which Martha named "Our Friends of the Air."

In Between Ditties:

In the nice weather Martha goes horseback riding in Central Park, Vet goes in for golf, and Vet and I take an old hansom cab and drive around the park in order to be outdoors.

Martha is about the only one of us who has a real avocation and she loves to cook. Every once in a while, she'll chase Mary out of the kitchen and get us a delicious meal. Basically, the three of us are just home folks and don't do anything very exciting. But we sing because we like to sing, and if you happen to be one of those who likes our singing, Mr. and Mrs. Reader, we're awfully glad and we want you to know we get just as much fun out of singing as we hope you do out of listening to us.

SHEEHAN RETURNING SOON BRINGING FILM STAR FROM ABROAD

Lillian Hervey, Famous on European Stage; Will Play in 'Bittersweet'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, May 28—Two weeks more and Winfield Sheehan will be back at his desk. June 15 is the date set for his return and Winnie, who is much better health than he has been for a year, returns with plenty of plans. He and Sol Wurtzel have been talking things over in Paris. Sol is returning with Winnie and unless some complete upheaval happens both will be at Fox Hills at their desks by the middle of June.

Lowell O. Parsons

The first official act of Mr. Sheehan since his serious illness was to sign Lillian Hervey, famous European actress. Here's a little piece of hot news. Miss Hervey, who sings, dances and who has looks, will play the Evelyn Laye role in "Bittersweet." Perhaps I should be polite and say it is rumored, but this tip comes so straight I am omitting the word as irrelevant, unimportant, etc.

Chatter in Hollywood

Three times within the last few weeks young Douglas Fairbanks has gone to Catalina by plane to see Joan Crawford, who is on location there with the "Rain" company. That doesn't sound as if a separation were imminent. Husbands who are trying to get rid of wives or wives who are tired of husbands do not fly to each other, I print this because of the hundreds of telephone calls and letters we have received asking why we do not make public the coming divorce of the young Fairbanks. Walter Morosco has brought from London with him tests of Corinne Griffith. They are said to be very lovely. Corinne studied diction and voice for a year before she made "Lily Christine," and the result has been well worth the time and money spent. The whole Morosco jennel accompanied Walter just in case he remains here—knowing Corinne's love for her dogs he'll probably be traveling here if Walter doesn't return to London soon.

Doris' Beauty Stays

If a beauty contest were held in Hollywood where there are more beautiful women to the square foot than in any city in the world, Doris Kenyon would rank high. Hers is a loveliness that seems to grow with the years and today she is more attractive than she was when she first started making pictures. Doris has started work at the Tiffany studios opposite Conrad Nagel in "The Man Called Back." It's the doctor story which we mentioned a day or so ago. The call came so quickly that she didn't even have a chance to get a wardrobe together. John Holliday, Alan Mowbrey and Juliette Compton are also emoting in this one for Tiffany.

New Departure

The long sought story for Constance Bennett has been located. Adela Rogers Hyland has written an original in which Connie Plays a business woman and a successful one. Instead of being the glamorous girl who pays the penalty to get her clothes and whose looks are her downfall, she will buy her own.

On Again, Off Again

Trying to sign Aline McMahon for the part in "Once in a Lifetime," she created on the stage, reminds one of "On Again, Off Again, Gone Again, Finnegan." One day it's all arranged, then the next day Warners cannot possibly spare her. She is now in "Silver Dollar," the Edward G. Robinson story. Alan Dinehart and Betty Davis are also in the cast. Miss McMahon is expected to do another story as soon as she finishes "Silver Dollar" as the chances are about 80 to 20 Warners will not lend her. Vera Teasdale, the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer importation, and Wynne Gibson are the other choices. Heavings, I haven't heard of Beuh Pollard in ages. He and Bobby Vernon are at Paramount playing opposite Stuart Erwin in "Merton of the Talkies" or "Gates of Hollywood" and—hold everything—the new title is "Half a Hero."

It all happened at the Mayor's Office at City Hall. The Mayor and I had a busy day. I was sitting around when word was received by the photographer who had me in charge that the French consul was on his way to the Mayor's office with officers of the French sloop-of-war Ville D'ys. H re's what happened.

I came in the door of the Mayor's private office, and saw this man with the Mayor. He is J. C. Joseph Flammand, the French consul, who was on hand to introduce the officers to Mayor Curley.

The introduction over, Capt. Maurice Griblin, who is in command of the Ville D'ys, now in Boston waters, sat down to sign the Mayor's guest book and I let the shutter fall.

Then the Mayor and Capt. Griblin got real friendly. The Mayor said: "Whenever you're in Boston, drop in on us. If it's late at night, don't let that stop you, because here's the key to the front door of our city." And thus, the Captain received the key.

Now then, it happened that Conchita Montenegro, actress, was also supposed to be greeted by His Honor. After being welcomed by the Mayor the movie star got real chummy with Junior Lieut. J. P. E. Barnard. They're looking over a photo of George Washington that the Mayor presented to the actress. (Staff Photos.)

WAR HEROES TO BE HONORED

Greater Boston veteran and patriotic organizations combined with leaders in the business and religious world today to complete plans for the annual observance of Memorial Day, Monday, when tribute will be paid to the nation's hero dead.

Exercises were held in the majority of Boston schools yesterday. The outstanding demonstration was the annual outdoor Memorial Day exercise at the English high school. Two separate theme assignments of essays were given.

Tomorrow special Memorial Day services will be held in Boston churches.

Monday will mark the culmination of the activities with parades in many communities. Veteran organizations will take charge of the activities in the majority of places, with other observances under the supervision of the Grand Army veterans.

COUZENS SAYS SMITH BACKS BANKERS

Washington, May 28 (AP)—An assertion that Alfred E. Smith spoke in defense of the great industries and banking interests of New York when he "charged Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt with being a demagogue," was made in the Senate today by Senator Couzens (R.) of Michigan.

The wealthy Michigan senator made the statement in assailing the proposed general sales tax.

He apparently referred to a Smith speech generally interpreted as directed at a Roosevelt plea for relief for "the forgotten man at the bottom of the pyramid."

"I resent this charge of demagogueery every time a public official rises anywhere to defend or protect the less privileged class in the country," said Couzens.

He added that "even Governor Roosevelt of New York" has been "charged with being a demagogue, and said Smith had risen in defense of New York industrial and banking interests.

Smith has publicly endorsed the sales tax.

LOOTER TREATS OWN WOUNDS

Herman G. Spaulding, who owns a drug store at 1439 Washington st., West Newton, doesn't seem to mind so much the fact that his store was robbed of $20 in cash and merchandise, including safety razor blades by an intruder last night. The thing that burns him up is that the robber gave himself leisurely first aid treatment with materials belonging to the store.

There were evidences of a broken window and many bloodstains, and so police theorized that the thief cut one of his hands while breaking the window. A real Sherlock might deduce that he stopped for a shave.

2 HELD AS CARD SHARPERS

Two "Southern gentlemen" from cities almost north introduced three-card monte to laborers employed in the excavation of the new East Boston tunnel, with the result they were held in East Boston court today.

They were booked as Odell Sumpter of Lexington, Ky., and Ira Earze of Charleston, W. Va. They were charged with being idle and disorderly and with gaming in a public place.

According to Sergt. Cripps and Special Officer Russell, the visitors had won $10 in the card game from tunnel laborers on the London st. side when police stepped in. Both pleaded not guilty to the idle and disorderly charge, and Bargpleaded not guilty to gaming. Sumpter, who police believe is wanted for a jail break in Miami, Fla., pleaded guilty to gaming. The case was continued one week.

JEWISH WOMEN PLAN FETE

Boston Chapter of Hadassah, the women's group of the Zionist Organization of America, will next Monday conduct a three-day program of diversified events and entertainment in the interest of the Palestinian medical fund maintained by them.

Each year Hadassah sponsors an affair that is unusual, different and elaborate and this year the money-making entertainment venture takes the form of a Jamboree, opening in the afternoon with a show for children of marionettes and magicians.

The annual fund-raising project will again be turned over to the Hadassah Medical Organization, which maintains in Palestine a preventive and curative program of health and sanitation in the land that is the national homeland of the Jews.

A cooking school and food talk by the chef of a prominent hotel will feature the Tuesday morning program, followed by an exhibition and lecture on "Reducing Without Dieting." In the evening the Food Hall Players will present "Cradle Crusaders," in which Miss Frieda Altman of Brookline will have one of the leading roles.

The last day of the Jamboree will feature again the cook school, a fashion and beauty show and in the evening a professional boxing bout and wrestling match.

An enlarged committee of prominent Boston women has worked hard for the success of the affair and will on Monday put the finishing touches to the arrangements. They are Mrs. Lewis Goldberg, Mrs. Arthur Jacobs, Mrs. Abraham Rudy, Mrs. Joseph Rabinowitz, Mrs. Morris Winer, Mrs. Julius H. Levine, Mrs. George Wyner, Mrs. Francis S. Wyner, Mrs. Samuel Kohn, Mrs. Simon Cohen, Mrs. Harry Michaels, Mrs. Louis Abramson, Mrs. William Solomon, Mrs. Nathaniel Albaum, Mrs. Joseph Abrams, Mrs. Abram Salter, Mrs. Bernard Levine, Mrs. Samuel Singer, Mrs. Harry Quint, Mrs. Julian Ansell and Mrs. Sol Rosenberg.

Miss Frieda Altman, who plays one of the leading roles in the presentation of Verne Jay's three-act satirical play, "Cradle Crusaders," Tuesday evening, at the Wilbur Theater. This performance is staged by the Ford Hall Players.

RIDING IS HORSE SHOW FEATURE

Cossack riding by crack members of the 110th Cavalry was the outstanding event of the Metropolitan Horse Show, which started at 9:30 a. m. at the Charles River Speedway and continued through the day.

Other features included an exhibition by policemen and two sulky races on the outside track.

Crowds lined the track and filtered through to the turf inside as the expert riders put the thoroughbreds through their paces.

Winners in the early events included Mrs. Beatrice F. Pratt, "Dicky" Scudder, Wellington A. Pratt, Betsy Bankart and Miss Constance Greco, who has been a consistent winner in race meets for two years.

EIGHT POSTAL EMPLOYES TO BE RETIRED

John J. Fitzgerald of Spencer st., Dorchester, assistant superintendent of the Roxbury postoffice station, is one of the eight postal employes who will retire from the service on Tuesday, Postmaster Hurley announced today.

Fitzgerald was appointed August 28, 1889.

The others to be retired are:

James S. Calnan, Belmont; appointed August 9, 1889.

Mark J. Keaney, special clerk, South Boston.

John J. McCue, Somerville.

Donald J. McGilvray, Somerville.

Nicholas A. Scollard, Dorchester.

William J. Morrison, Hyde Park.

Edward J. O'Riley, Jamaica Plain.

N. Y. Milk Czar Faces Income Tax Charge

New York, May 28 (INS)—The United States attorney's drive against racketeers led today to issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Larry Fay, called the "milk czar," for alleged failure to make Government income tax returns.

It is charged that Fay did not file returns in 1929 and did not turn over $1004 allegedly collected from patrons as Government tax.

'HANDS UP!' AT GUNPOINT

HEROIC SEA RESCUE TOLD

how, before the impact, Capt. Borum had ordered reversed speed, so that his ship rammed the Grecian, instead of being rammed.

Not one of the Chattanooga's passengers, who numbered 34, but had praise for the seamanship resulting in the rescue of all except four of the Grecian's personnel.

None of the rescued was permitted to talk because all were scheduled to testify at a hearing before the steamboat inspectors at the Appraisers' Stores this afternoon. Nine of them were slightly injured. They are Vernon Parker, John Britt, Edward Love, Harry Brun, Claude Havis, David Collins, Robert Johnson, Andrew Williams and John Quinn.

CAUGHT IN WHIRLPOOL

John Walker, Albert Jennings and Thomas Nottage, the three most seriously injured are at the Marine Hospital on Marthas Vineyard, to which they were removed by a coast guard boat yesterday. Of all the rescued, Vernon Parker had probably the most harrowing experience. He was in the Grecian's engineroom when the prow of the Chattanooga came crashing in above him and the sea swept him off his feet. He began to swim and found he could make no headway. He was caught in a whirlpool and washed into a companionway and with the water constantly rising about him, fought his way to deck. He became delirious as a result of shock.

Mrs. George Bliss of Malden, one of the passengers, told the following story:

"I was asleep when a voice calling, 'Everybody up on deck and bring your life preserver,' awakened me. Everybody obeyed. The crew quietly attended to adjustment of life belts on those who had any trouble and the crew reassured us we were in no danger.

CAPTAIN IS PRAISED

"Capt. Borum certainly did a fine job in the emergency. If he hadn't reversed his engines before the crash the other ship would have hit us. There was no demonstration. The crew put us in our right places and we watched the rescue work. The coast guard was on the scene in less than an hour. Everybody did a splendid job."

H. M. Wilson, chief engineer of the Chattanooga, said:

"I was at my post with three assistants. We had been running at reduced speed for several hours, due to heavy fog. We didn't even feel the jar when we struck, because of engine vibration. The indicator flashed reverse, but we couldn't feel the impact."

SAW MAN CRUSHED

Ernest Timpson, Salem:

"I was standing on deck and saw a man on the Grecian crushed between the two ships when he jumped for a rope and missed. The impact was not severe. There was no panic or much excitement. Capt. Borum knew how to act in an emergency. The crew showed their faith in him. His orders were all executed immediately. I have no words to describe the smooth manner in which the entire situation was handled."

Survivors of the Grecian Land; Praise Hero Skipper

The Savannah liner City of Chattanooga, which rammed and sank the Merchants & Miners ship Grecian off Block island yesterday, reached Hoosac Tunnel docks, Charlestown, at 7 a. m. today with the survivors of the freighter's crew.

Fog and High Sea Halt Search for Victims

New London, Ct., May 28 (INS)—Heavy fog and high seas forced coast guard vessels to abandon further search for the bodies of two men known to have been drowned when the Grecian was sunk early yesterday morning in a collision with the City of Chattanooga.

The bodies of E. L. Forrest of Portsmouth, Va., and Charles Crowley of Providence, were recovered yesterday, but no trace has been found of two others. James Merriweather, a mess boy, and Zanry Lowes, ordinary seaman.

Woman Motorist Killed

New London, Ct., May 28 (AP)—Mrs. Walter Miller, New York, was killed today when her automobile overturned on a curve at Flanders. Her husband was critically injured. The couple was en route to Boston.

3 GUNMEN ROB CHAIN STORE

The "blue overalls bandits," youths about 20, who staged two holdups a week ago, were at work again today.

They held up James Davey, manager of a chain store in East Fourth st., South Boston, and robbed the till of $120.

Rushing into the store soon after it opened, the bandits, one of whom carried a gun, forced Davey into a rear room and kept him there until the cash register was rifled. They made their getaway in an automobile.

From the description given by Davey, police said they are certain the pair were members of a trio that held up another South Boston chain store May 19 and followed it five minutes later with the holdup of a Roxbury chain store.

As in the previous robberies, the pair escaped today in a car driven by the third member.

The two that entered the store were described as about 20, 5 feet 7 inches, 150 pounds. Both were blue overalls. One wore a blue coat and the other a coat sweater.

For Those Who Would Know What Is Doing

Well folks, what'll we do over the holiday? For many of us there is a three-day fiesta, beginning with today's week-end and continuing tomorrow and Monday. A whole flock of us will have to work—and be durned glad of it—but it's an unlucky soul who can't find one day's recreation among the three day period. Days of rest are getting scarcer than hen's teeth for some of us. Today the Athletics, erstwhile champions of the universe, engage our lowly Red Sox at Fenway Park and again at Braves Field, tomorrow. Columbia plays Harvard here on Soldiers Field today and the crews of Harvard, Cornell and Syracuse will be having it out on the waters of the Charles. Harvard and Yale poloists clash at Myopia. Scholastic baseball galore. Golf everywhere. Outside of the Athletics-Red Sox game there will be little doing, tomorrow. The fans will be sitting back and waiting for the Decoration Day Sport's feast.

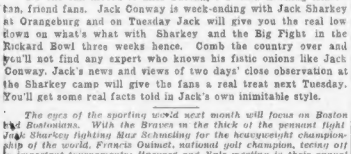
Perhaps there isn't quite as much doing in sport on Memorial Day as there has been in former years. Since the World War May 30 has come to mean much more than it did. But after we have all gone to that little grave on the hill or mayhap that little cemetery in the valley, we'll find a lot to amuse ourselves. Of course the chief interest will center in the double header in the afternoon between our rampaging Braves and the Giants at Braves field. A week ahead of it we told you a record crowd would turn out for last Sunday's double header at the weigwams. It di not only will smile another record throng will storm the Tepee next Monday. Boston is baseball mad. The only reason more than 60,000 persons will not jam Braves field next Monday afternoon is that the field will not hold them. Ten thousand were turned away last Sunday. You've got to build a bigger ball yard, judge.

Despite the huge crowd that will turn out to see the Braves and Giants next Monday, other sporting attractions will not suffer. The automobile races at Brockton are sure to attract an army of spectators. The flock of scholastic games will be well attended and all the links will be crowded. The open air Horse Show at Chestnut Hill will draw its quota. A whole flock of B. C. men will go to Worcester for the big game with Holy Cross, and the Harvard hordes will head for Providence, where the Crimson throws out a battle front against Brown. And so another holiday will end.

You can wager all the tea that was dumped in Boston harbor the night of the Big Party that if the Red Sox change hands, no matter who are the announced purchasers, that the real money behind it will be from out of the coffers of Babe Ruth, Bill Carrigan and their respective financial backers and associates. It may be that it will be necessary to cover Ruth's part in the transaction for a year, possibly two years, to come. Bill Carrigan may also choose to remain in the background, although this is not so likely as the covering of Ruth's hand. The mere fact that local capital buys a ball club does not necessarily mean that it possesses a controling interest. In many business concerns the ostensible heads really are directed by a power behind the throne. Many corporations have holding companies. Many New York, Chicago, Boston concerns are owned by outside interests. Babe Ruth in years to come will play almost as prominent a part as a magnate as he has as a player. The Big Bambino is headed for Boston and sooner or later he officially and publicly will arrive.

No one can afford to miss Tuesday's Boston Evening American, friend fans. Jack Conway is week-ending with Jack Sharkey at Orangeburg and on Tuesday Jack will give you the real low down on what's what with Sharkey and the Big Fight in the Rickard Bowl three weeks hence. Comb the country over and you'll not find any expert who knows his fistic onions like Jack Conway. Jack's news and views of two days' close observation at the Sharkey camp will give the fans a real treat next Tuesday. You'll get some real facts told in Jack's own inimitable style.

The eyes of the sporting world next month will focus on Boston and Boxtown. With the Braves in the thick of the pennant fight Jack Sharkey fighting Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship of the world, Francis Ouimet, national golf champion, teeing off in important tournaments; Harvard and Yale meeting in their annual rowing duel, and the cream of the Eastern athletes gathering here for the Olympic tryouts, Boston will be shrieking from headlines all over the universe. The livest, peppiest, greatest sporting town on the map—that's Boston! And we're proud of it.



Any rider that essays 100 miles an hour on a dirt track is defying death. That is why you'll find the Brockton Fair Grounds packed next Monday afternoon regardless of the huge turnout at Braves Field. Automobile races have a peculiar fascination, especially for those who are always seeking a thrill. What will bring 90 per cent of the spectators to Brockton is the possibility—or should we say probability—of an accident. The fans must have their thrill. They will go miles to get it.

Although the cream of the country's speed demons will be at Indianapolis, some of the greatest dirt track drivers in the country will be at the wheels in Brockton. Death rides in the wake of dirt track drivers. The worst part of it is that auto races on trotting tracks always carry the possibility of spectators as well as contestants being injured. One single skid or swerve and the machine goes crashing through guard rails crushing everything in its path. This humble scribe—and we're not any white blooded psalm singing reformer either—believes there should be a law prohibiting auto speed races on any non-straightaway track not properly banked and ample safeguards provided for the spectators.

Bucs Beat Cards, 8-4, in Free Hitting Game

Pittsburgh, May 27—A big lead in the early innings provided the Pirates with an 8 to 4 victory over the world champion Cardinals, their fourth straight win. Larry French did an efficient piece of south-pawing for the Bucs, hurling a steady game despite the fact that he was pounded for 14 hits. The Pirates collected 13 off Jess Haines and Tex Carleton, including four-baggers by Grace and Barbee.

Tigers Nip White Sox on Six Safeties, 7-5

Detroit, May 27—Timely hitting by Gehringer, Johnson and Sorrell put the Tigers on the long end of a 7 to 5 score against the White Sox. Between them the Ti ... men brought in six of the Tigers seven tallies. Besides using a damaging bat, Sorrell also wielded a powerful arm and kept the Chisox at bay until the ninth, when he loosened up and was replaced by Hogsett.

Fields Will Be Set to Fight Title Bout

Chicago, May 28 (AP)—Dr. Harry S. Gracle, physician of Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion, said today Fields would be able to leave Michael Reese Hospital by next Saturday and resume training for defense of his title June 28 at San Francisco against Young Corbett a week later. Fields is under observation for eye trouble.

PRIDE OF BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH

Joe Kern... BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH Pitching Ace.

Cambridge can sing of Danny Lynch and "Mugsy" Kelley. Other schools can parade and yodel of Tom Bilodeau, Lefty Reming, George Nicotakis and Joe McDonough. But when it comes to Boston College High they give a long cheer for BULLET JOE KERN. The tall, willowy Maroon and Gold cub has been making opposing batters jump through, roll over and play dead, all season. His last victory over Brookline was a pitching classic. Unlike most schoolboy twirlers Kern isn't eternally trying for strikeouts. He just rolls along under double wraps until the pinches. When BULLET JOE has to cut loose, Boy, oh Boy, how he can curl 'em over! When an opposing team gets an earned run off the pride of the B. C. High pitching corps it's something to brag about.

The Daily Dozen

—By Myles T. McSweeney—

Paulino, the Basque woodchopper, made one mistake in his fight with Mickey Walker. He forgot to carry his axe with him.

It looks as if plenty of other fighters will need an axe to beat Mickey.

Don't run over them hitchhikers. They may be Olympic officials on their way to Los Angeles.

Due to lack of funds, officials will have to pay their own way to the games—or walk.

Why not make walking to Los Angeles an official Olympic event?

With fewer officials around to clutter up the field, those who attend the Olympic games may have a chance to see some of the events.

A committee is now codifying tag football rules. Brass knuckles are barred.

But it's o. k. to wear silk stockings.

Time out will be taken whenever a player gets a run . . . in his stocking.

One of the automobiles entered in the speed races at Brockton on Monday is said to resemble a jewel. It ought to give a sparkling performance.

If the speed races at Brockton inspire you, remember there are no traffic cops on a race course.

Indians Break Streak in Win Over Browns

St Louis, May 27—A finely pitched game by Clinton Brown ended the Cleveland Indians' streak of bad luck and gave them a 6 to 3 decision over the Browns. Brown restricted the Killifer men to five hits, one of them Goose Goslin's first homer of the season. The tribe garnered nine off Blaeholder and Kimsey. Earl Averill collecting three singles which brought in as many runs.

OAKLEY GOLFER CAPTURES CHAMPIONSHIP FOR 7TH TIME, TWO UP

By BILL GRIMES

Before a large and colorful gallery, Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., won her seventh W. G. A. championship today when she defeated Miss Dorothy Richards, Weston, 2 up at the Andover Country Club.

Mrs. Baker played a typical Baker round, being far more dangerous when in trouble than when things were breaking right for her. After being in considerable trouble at the 3rd, 6th and 12th holes, her marvelous recovery saved the new champion on each occasion. At the third hole Mrs. Baker hooked her tee shot into the rough, pushed an iron into the rough on the other side of the fairway, but laid her third a foot and a half away from the pin for an easy 4, which gave her a half.

After a well played outward nine, after which they were all even, Mrs. Baker and Miss Richards both slumped during the in half journey. After they had halved the tenth, Mrs. Baker shot her tee shot in the pit at the 11th and Miss Richard followed with a badly hook drive into the swamp.

Miss Richards declared her first shot in an unplayable lie and her second ball which she elected to play from the tee was on. From the pit, Mrs. Baker went over the green into a trap was just out with her third, and they finally halved the hole with 5s.

Going to the home hole 1 up, Mrs. Baker was on the neck edge of the green in 3 with Miss Richards still short on 4. Miss Richards tipped but Mrs. Baker laid her approach putt dead, won the hole with a 5 and the match, 2 up.

Mrs. Baker's card:
Out	5	4	4	4	5	3	5	6	4—41
In	5	3	5	4	5	6	4	4	5—45—86
Miss Richardson's card:

In	5	3	5	4	5	7	3	5	7—48—89

FINAL ROUND

Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Oakley, defeated Miss Dorothy Richards, Weston, 2 up.

Albie Booth Opposed to Eli Grid Reform

New Haven, Ct., May 28 (AP)—The plan restricting Yale's varsity football program to five games and confining practice to the normal season was assailed today by Albie Booth, Edward Rotan and John S. Wilbur, members of the 1931 eleven, in a statement published in the Yale Daily News, undergraduate publication.

The trio charged that the report of the university committee which outlined Yale's new athletic policy "did not take into account undergraduate opinion" and urged "that university football be permitted to retain its present wholesome status."

The News, too, joined in criticizing the drastic curtailment in the university's athletic program.

"Undergraduates and graduates alike," it warned editorially, "will not tolerate the complete obliteration of Yale's athletic traditions."

Booth, captain of the 1931 team; Wilbur, his successor, and Rotan asserted that "the so-called drudgery of long-grinding training periods' is a vastly exaggerated figment of the minds of non-participants."

Relative to the five-game schedule, they said:

"We feel that the present schedule is not over-extensive, and that since the major pleasure of football lies in the games, the players are entitled to at least seven games."

To meet the objection raised by the committee against "breather' games, the three stars suggested scheduling slightly better teams for early games.

"Yale football teams have been winning teams for 60 years; the players who have gone before have built up a splendid record and a noble heritage for the players who are to come. Is this record to be discounted, to be disregarded?"

The News said:

"The limitation of football to five games and the proposed abolition of 150-pound football give warning of more unfavorable decisions in the future."

It also questioned the wisdom of "so strongly attempting to curtail and de-emphasize Yale's current athletic relationship with the outside world."

MARCHING ALONG -:- With Speed Kings on Land and Water -:- IN SPORT'S PARADE

Just before the "dog fight," Mother. Here's Charlie Whiteside's Harvard varsity crew which races against the eights of Cornell and Syracuse on the Charles today. Cornell is favored, but Harvard may spring a surprise.

Carrying the big canoe are Stroke Jerry Cassedy; Saltonstall, No. 7; Bancroft, No. 6; Baddering with the gloves at Madison Square Garden. Mickey crin, No. 5; Capt. Tom Armstrong, No. 4; won the duke although outweighed by the Basque. Now he Erickson, No. 3; Hallowell, No. 2, and Holcombe, bow.

Mickey Walker, the Toy Bulldog, is here shown driving his right to Paulino Uzcudun's equator during their recent wants to meet the Sharkey-Schmeling winner.

Helen Hicks, America's national women's golf champion, displays perfect form as she drives a "screamer" from the third tee in a practice game against a mixed team over the Royal Ashdown Forest golf course. She was the mainstay of the U. S. team, which defeated the British team for the Anglo-American championship.

Cornell Crew Picked to Set New Mark Today

By JOE MOONEY

A much-shifted Harvard varsity crew will attempt to regain its former rowing prestige against a superior Cornell boat and a strong contender eight from Syracuse in a triangular meeting between the navies of the three institutions on the Charles River Basin today.

The most recent seating of Charlie Whiteside's Crimson varsity eight has several new faces in the lineup, and represents the result of more than two weeks of constant shifting and adjusting by the Harvard coach.

Old Jim Ten Eyck, coach of the Syracuse eight, who watched his charges go over the course in a final trial spin yesterday, seemed satisfied that the Ithacans were in record-breaking shape for today's row.

Real Race Between Red and Orange

Unless a major catastrophe befalls the Wray-coached boat, the real race of the day will be between Cornell and Syracuse. Cornell beat Yale, and Syracuse beat Navy, and that amply indicates the company Harvard is in today.

Between the three strokes who will get the best for their respective eights, there is not much choice. Jerry Cassedy, the lantern jawed Harvard pace setter, 200 pound Tom Lombardi of Syracuse, and Bob Wilson, Jr., in the Big Red boat are about equally renowned in Eastern rowing circles.

Syracuse Lineup Changed

Syracuse, like Harvard, will present a revamped varsity eight for today's race. Ten Eyck is a strong advocate of the policy of breaking in two varsity crews, and when he could bring only one to Cambridge, he made a new selection for his varsity eight.

The Syracuse shell has three new faces. Harold Donaldson, at bow, Pete Abrams at No. 3, and George Kratner at No. 6 are recent acquisitions drafted from Wray's second.

For Harvard, Whiteside's avowed starting lineup is much the same boat with which started the season and suffered two shakeups. Roger Hallowell, promoted one chair since fortnightly, will be at No. 2 for Harvard today, a position which he has never rowed in competition before.

Otherwise, the Crimson seating, with Saltonstall, Bacon, Bancroft, Capt. Armstrong, Erickson and Holcombe behind Stroke Cassedy, is retained for today's race.

This Harvard crew averages 187 pounds in weight and is four pounds heavier than Cornell and five pounds heavier than the Syracuse navy. The difference in weight factor will be against Harvard if the basin is calm today, but the usual chop on the Charles will give Whiteside's men a little advantage.

The complete racing program, which is scheduled to start with the Harvard-Cornell freshmen race at 3:30 p. m., will include junior varsity races between Harvard and Cornell and the three corner brush between the three varsity boats.

5 RACE EVENTS AT BROCKTON

Thrills aplenty are carded for Brockton Fairgrounds Monday afternoon when the A. A. A. New England auto races will be run on the fast half-mile track.

The time trials will start at 12:30 p. m. and the first of five races at 2:30. Three five-mile races, a ten-miler and the feature 40 lap final race, should provide action galore for the New England lovers of auto racing.

There are over 30 benzine buddies entered, of which 19 may qualify and 10 run in the big race of the day.

The entries include Larry Seats, Nobscot, Mass.; Otto Burdick, Oneida, N. Y.; Henry Turgeon, Pawtucket, R. I.; Buddy Mouquin, Springfield, Mass.; Gordon Condon, Altoona, Pa.; Burt Karnatz, Detroit; Vern Orendurff, Bluefield, W. Va.; Lloyd Vieaux, Beverly Hills, Cal.; Wild Bill Chettleburgh, Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Herman Venis and Kingsley Woodworth, Long Island, N. Y.; Frankie Farmer, Philadelphia; Johnny Morelli, Atlantic City, N. J.; Bill Troutwine, Gloversville, N. Y.; Harold Woods, East Pepperell, Mass.; Bill Burns, South Lincoln, Mass.; Dave Bouley, Waterbury, Ct., and Ted Kessler, Frank Amschler, Eddie Masters and "Big Boy" Jack Reynolds of Buffalo, N. Y.

Who Will Buy Red Sox? Many Are After Them

By JOE CASHMAN

The two Boston groups reported in the market to purchase the Red Sox are said to be in favor of retaining Bob Quinn as president of the club, if possible, and that would be a mighty wise move.

There never has been a more popular local magnate than the Fenway "prexy," despite the ill-luck he has had with the Sox. His untiring efforts to put Boston back on the baseball map and his willingness to boost the game in every way possible, in the face of all his misfortune, has endeared him to New England fans, and they are all for keeping him in the driver's seat at the Fens.

The good will and support of the public which his retention would insure would be invaluable to the new owners.

And few, if any, major league executives are better fitted to guide a franchise than the Sox boss, who has been connected with the pastime for close to half a century as player, manager, scout, business manager and president.

Since he doesn't know as yet who, if anybody, is going to take over the Sox, Bob is naturally silent as to whether he would stay on the job, if asked. He intimates though that he might stick if the new owners so wished and were willing to give him complete authority as he had when he was working for Phil Ball of St. Louis.

Quinn Was Main Cog of St. Louis Browns

He ran the whole works in the Mound City. He bought and sold players, made trades, set the salaries and dictated the club's policy in every matter.

Bob is one of the old school, of which there are altogether too few left; a man who has grown up from childhood in the game and always thinks of it first and himself afterwards. It would take a large book to list all he has done to better the sport.

He is the originator of Ladies' Day. The idea was scoffed at by baseball magnates when he put into effect. Now nearly every owner in both leagues admits the fair sex free to one game a week and admits the plan has done much to increase interest in the pastime.

When he came here in 1924, there was little local interest in sandlot baseball. Now, due to his energy, the Boston Park Department League, of which he is president, is one of the largest amateur baseball organizations in the country with over 7500 young players.

TIGER COACH PANS REFORM

Minneapolis, May 28 (AP)—The man who as Princeton's head football coach will watch Yale athletics closely, doesn't agree entirely with Old Elis' new program.

H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, finishing up as Minnesota athletic director before going east permanently, sympathizes with Yale's new emphasis on intramural athletics, but fears curtailing intercollegiate competition won't be healthy.

Reducing a football season to five games, Crisler said, will "kill the excitement and emotion" of students and players into five Saturdays instead of four, he said.

He believes that a mistake.

"In regard to reducing the successful over-emphasis on football," he said, "I think we've got too much over-emphasis on the over-emphasis on football."

ITALY TO SEND STRONG TEAM

Los Angeles, May 28 (INS)—Acclaiming the team as the strongest in the history of Italy, Joseph E. Pagliano, Jr., Italian Olympic attache, announced today that his nation would be represented by 110 athletes and 8 officials at the 10th Olympiad here this summer.

The Italian team will probably be the largest sent by any European nation, and second only to Japan.

"Backed by Premier Benito Mussolini, athletics have gradually increased in importance in Italy until our 1932 Olympic team can be said to represent the flower of our national sports program since its revival seven years ago," said Pagliano.

Italy's track and field team, while not figured as potential championship caliber is expected to cut heavily into the points of the United States, and thereby indirectly aid Finland's cause.

As matters shape up now, Italy's strongest bid on the Yanks will be made by Beccali and Tavernai, middle-distances runners, and by Facelli in the discus throw.

Beccali and Tavernai have both stepped the 800 meters, the Olympic equivalent of the half-mile, in close to 1:53.

Slattery of Brighton Georgetown Captain

Track, Aloysius T. Kelly, West Hempstead, L. I.; baseball, William E. Rapp, Washington, D. C.; golf, John R. Shatters, Brighton, Mass.; tennis, Egbert R. Ferguson, Lakewood, O.

Blind Boys of N. Y. and Boston in Dual Meet

With the competitors unable to see each other and with the sprinters guided in the lanes by taught wires, a track meet between boys of the Perkins Institution for the Blind, of Watertown, and the New York Institute for the Blind, will be held tomorrow afternoon on the former's grounds.

Except that there will be only standing jumps, nearly the same events as are held in school meets for seeing boys will be scheduled. There will be 50 and 75-yard dashes, standing broad and high jumps, hop, step and jump, three consecutive jumps and shot put.

Keen Competition in Sprint Events

In the sprints keen competition will be between Howard VanDuyne, captain of the New York team, Leroy Gill, a fast colored member of the visiting team, Edward Yachon of Manchester, N. H., and Harvey Rainville of New Bedford, both students of the local school.

Lawrence Thompson of Woburn is expected to star in the broad jump for Perkins, while Ralph Macillero of the New York team is the most outstanding member in the high jump. Walter Berube of Lewiston, Me., is the stellar member of the local team and is counted upon to pile up points for Perkins.

Tunnel "Moles" to Play in Ball League

Park Commissioner William P. Long has arranged with the officials at the East Boston traffic tunnel two baseball leagues comprised of employes only. These men work four hours below the surface of the ground and are given three hours out. The physician in charge has ordered a program of sports to give these men the proper recreation necessary during their rest hours.

Purple Golfers Beat B. C. Linksmen

Holy Cross golfers defeated Boston College's varsity linksmen, 6-3, at the Wachusett Club course, Worcester, yesterday. The Crusaders overcame an early lead in the twosome by taking three of the foursome matches to win the meet.

BURGOO KING MAY NOT RUN

New York, May 28 (INS)—It is unlikely that Burgoo King, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, will run in the Withers Mile at Belmont Park this afternoon because of track conditions.

The E. R. Bradley color-bearer never has shown anything in a slow race over good track and the defeat of last night has made the Belmont oval, heavy and holding. "Dick" Thompson, trainer of the colt, announced earlier in the week that he would not send Burgoo King to the barrier unless the track was lightning fast.

The withdrawal of Burgoo King would reduce the field to six starters and perhaps make Boatswain, which finished third in the Preakness, the favorite.

NURMI AT PEAK FOR MARATHON

Helsingfors, May 28—Paavo Nurmi is at the peak of his running form and he great Finnish distance runner is not at all worried about the Olympic games at Los Angeles where he expects to compete when his amateur standing is confirmed.

The "Flying Finn" won the 10,000 meter event at the Turku national meet in 30 minutes, 40 and 9-10 seconds, about 35 seconds short of his record time set in 1924. After the race, Nurmi said:

"I've never felt better. I could have bettered my time by 30 seconds had I been pressed. I'm confident of winning the Marathon."

Lasse Wirtanen, another Finnish Olympic candidate, finished behind Nurmi in 30 minutes, 41 and 3-10 seconds.

1500 METER RACE AT 'Y' POOL

The Metropolitan Swimming Club, in conjunction with the Boston Y. M. C. A., will hold a 1500 meter swim at the "Y" pool on Saturday evening, May 28, at 8 o'clock. This is the first time this distance has ever been attempted in New England.

Several prominent swimmers have been entered, including William Nolan of the Boston Boys Club, who finished sixth in the National A. A. U. meet in New Haven; Gordon Connolly of the Boston Swimming Association; William Murray, Brookline Swimming Club; Frank Casey, Boston Boys Club, and Frank Holland of the Metropolitan Swimming Club.

Medford Trackmen Win Over Malden

Strong running enabled Medford high trackmen to take five out of eight first places in their annual dual meet with Malden high, and the Hillsiders outscored the Malden boys, 43¾ to 33¼ in the Malden high school stadium yesterday.

Braves to Attend Catholic U. Night

The Catholic Union of Boston will conduct a "baseball night" at Catholic Union Hall next Tuesday evening, May 31, at which Judge Fuller and the Braves will be special guests. In view of the great interest which the members of the fair sex have displayed in the fortunes of the Braves, the meeting will be open to both sexes.

The committee in charge is headed by Dr. Michael R. McCarthy as chairman, assisted by William F. Quinn, Dr. John M. Donovan, John A. Gibbons and George F. Fitzgerald.

Arlington Mills Plays Standards

The champion Standard cricket eleven will be at home at the North Brighton crease today with the fast Arlington Mills eleven of Lawrence providing the opposition.

How I Got My Start In Baseball

By BOB BROWN
(Braves Pitcher)
As Told to Joe Cashman

The story of my entrance into pro ball is brief and simple.

I was very successful pitching for Hingham High school back in 1929. Jack Slattery, Braves' scout, saw me twirl several games and as soon as I was graduated, he was Johnny-on-the-spot with a Trial contract, which I lost, no time signing.

Bob Brown

I had hoped to reach the majors some day, but naturally, I had never dreamed I would be offered a contract as soon as I was through school, until Slattery came along.

This is my third season with the Warriors. I was in several leagues under option in 1930, and I spent most of last season at Binghampton, N. Y., in the New York-Penn circuit.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

The National League race grows dizzier every day. Now the Giants are in the cellar, the third club that has been down there this week. The Pirates, who opened the week in the basement, are now in fourth place, and if the third-place Reds lose today the Braves and Cubs will be the only clubs in the circuit with a percentage of better than .500.

The Giants, pre-season favorites to win the pennant, fell to the bottom when they dropped their second game in a row to the Dodgers, 5 to 2. Van Mungo, who beat the Braves here, Tuesday, went back after a two-day rest and held the McGrawmen to seven hits.

The Pirates leaped past the Cardinals into the first division by taking the world's champions' measure, 8 to 4. It was the fourth win in a row for the Bucs.

The Cubs increased their lead over the Braves to 3½ games by nosing out the Reds, 6 to 4. The pace-setters scored all their runs in a thirteen-inning rally featured by a home run by Charlie Grimm.

Detroit strengthened its hold on third place in the American League by whipping the White Sox, 7 to 5. The Bengals are now a full game in front of the champion Athletics who were idle in Boston.

Governor Ely signed the bill passed by the Legislature which will permit the playing of Sunday games at Fenway Park. The new law becomes operative at once.

Hereafter the Sunday games at home by the Red Sox will be played at Fenway Park, starting upon the return of the Boston club from its first western trip.

The new law supercedes that clause in the Sunday sports law which prohibited the playing of games within 1000 feet of a house of worship. Fenway Park is not within that limit by less than 100 feet, of the Church of the Redemption, Jersey and Peterboro sts. The new law makes the limit 700 feet.

CITIZENS PAY FOR MISTAKES OF CONSTABLES

This is the 24th in a series of articles exposing the tax collection racket, a form of legalized extortion, which is fattening the pockets of constables and victimizing reputable citizens of Massachusetts.

One of the evils of the tax situation in Massachusetts is the attempt on the part of tax collectors and their constables to make citizens pay for their blunders.

Complaints received by the Boston Evening American show that constables have tried to compel citizens to pay their expenses after being convinced the citizens had been wrongfully taxed by towns where they formerly resided and had met their tax obligations in their new place of abode.

This appears to be a common error, but John J. Meagher of 8 Cross st., Woburn, today deals with another evil, equally grave and about as common, judging from the letters received by the Tax Editor. Meagher's experience reveals an attitude and a disregard for the rights of a citizen which is altogether too prevalent.

The tax collector in this case should have accepted Meagher's word when he said "the deal was all closed" on the Saturday night Meagher went with it and given him a receipt and there would not have been any trouble. The office was open for business. A little more tact and diplomacy on the part of certain tax collectors would improve conditions.

HOW RACKET WORKS

"I have been reading your articles on the tax collection racket," writes Meagher, "but did not think that I would be a victim as I am at this very writing (Letter dated May 17.)

"On March 16, 1932, I received a bill for an excise tax of $6.56. I wasn't working and I went to the city collector and asked him how much time would be allowed before an increase was made on the tax.

"He told me then that there would be no increase as the law was printed in the newspapers until after May 15, 1932.

"On May 14, 1932, I was reminded at home that it was the last day before the increase. Shortly after 7 p. m. I entered the tax collector's office and passed the money and the receipt for $6.56 into a receiving window to the tax collector, Mr. Thomas J. McColgan.

"Mr. McColgan stood looking at the demand and the money for over a minute. He then passed it back, saying that the desks were locked up and that he should be through in writing it in Tuesday night, this being the only night during the week the place should be open.

"Rather than wait until Thursday night, I asked him if he would be right for me to drop in on either Monday or Tuesday to pay the demand of $6.56. He nodded his head 'Yes.'

"Going out at the time, it struck me funny that he couldn't take it. Monday I was in Reading, Billerica and Lynn, but didn't worry, thinking I had until Tuesday night to pay it.

GETS JAIL THREAT

"Tuesday morning a card came demanding $7.95 in default of which I would be sent to jail. To say that I was surprised is putting it mildly. Thinking possibly that they had made a mistake I went there at about 3 p. m. to pay the $6.56.

"I passed the demand and $6.56 to the collector, Mr. McColgan. He looked at it and dug out a new demand and told me that the charge had been increased. I reminded him about Saturday night (May 14) when I had refused to accept my money. He said I was mistaken and that I should have paid Monday.

"How simply I had mistaken him! Knowing that the position of tax collector is one of responsibility, I had thought that his word was good and had complete confidence.

"Simply expressed, one of the two of us is mistaken and it isn't I.

"Now Mr. McColgan has the advantage. He has the government to back him up and there is little doubt whose word would be taken in case a complaint was made.

"I am just another citizen who has been wronged, but cannot do a thing about it.

"Things are getting bad when the law becomes a racket.

"If you care to print all or part of this you have my permission, with or without my name.

"Sincerely yours,

"John J. Meagher."

Mr. Meagher cited the letter references where he has been employed in the past six years.

Another installment in the investigation of the tax scandal will be published Tuesday in the Boston Evening American.

Seekonk Man Held on Perjury Charge

Taunton, May 28—Louis Gwydewska, 36, of Pine st., Seekonk, questioned for several hours by State Detective Francis J. Clemmey in the probe of the slaying of John Rusolvitch, 52, at Seekonk, May 15, was last night arrested on a charge of subornation of perjury and held in $1100 bail.

The charge is in connection with an application for an auto license and registration, officials said.

STAGE FOR A STUDIO

This half-hour originating on the RKO-Keith Theater stage is shaping rapidly. It is unique in that it affords patrons of the theater an opportunity to witness the broadcast going out, at the same time hearing it amplified through large horns into the audience. John McNamara, widely touted Hub announcer, will be radio master of ceremonies, introducing His Honor Mayor Curley, the headline personality, Jen Bernie, in addition to numerous local air artists of note. Music is by the popular WBZ maestro, Oscar Elgart, and his orchestra, long a favorite group hereabouts. Its between 7:30 and 8 o'clock (WBZ), shortly after Amos 'n' Andy sign off, the above mentioned doings get under way. Quite a promising likelihood of pleasing last minute surprises.

NO INTERVIEW, THANK YOU

Plans were under way for Connie Boswell to be interviewed either on WAAB or WNAC by Miss Eleanor Geer, who did so well by Bing Crosby and Guy Lombardo. This would have been an interesting bit, as radio interviews go. Difficulties arose, of a contractual nature and otherwise, according to what little information anyone was willing (or able) to give out last evening. Unless some unforeseen development occurs today, no such program will happen.

Berenger Advocates a Cut in Annuities

Paris, May 28 (AP)—Victor Henry Berenger, negotiator of the recent Franco-American debt arrangement, suggested in an article published here today that the Young plan annuities be reduced one-third to meet a 20 per cent fall in business.

If the payments then should still prove too heavy for Germany, he recommended a moratorium on all payments except 440,000,000 reichsmarks (about $110,000,000).

'OLD MAESTRO' HITS TOWN

Financial News and Comment

STATE ST.—Hears:

That the market has approached the approximate level at which a real turning movement could be looked for. Traders who neglected to take short lines in today are urged to consider this on Tuesday. Constructive events are so long overdue that it does not seem they can be postponed much longer. A hopeful view is likely to prove the most profitable next week.

Market Action

Along with the market's approach to previously outlined resistance, there are certain clear cut tape indications which cause astute traders to regard the short side with suspicion. Taking the leaders, such as American Can, Steel and Allied Chemical, it would seem that yesterday selling has been in order since late Thursday.

All the leading shares held well for about 10 days prior to this. Presumably this was to facilitate the liquidation of the spaced list. Usually the breakdown of the so-called blue chips is a signal that the bear selling is over. The natural inclination is for buyers to go short stocks when the leaders slip badly.

Boardroom Briefs

Obviously those who are enticed onto the bear side are furnishing the cushion which market sponsors must have to bring about a technical rally . . . And in order to make the shorts feel secure they are likely to let them have things their own way for a day or so . . . Patience and caution should prove profitable virtues in the next few sessions.

Another thing to keep in mind is the time element . . . As previously noted here, the market has already outdone itself in extent and is now close to the time limits of previous declines. Britain's purchases of gold indicate the pound will be stabilized at around current levels . . . Otherwise England would not part with a heavy premium on gold purchases.

BEN BERNIE IN TOWN, BUT LATE

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Once a trouper, always a trouper. The show must go on.

Ben Bernie, "old maestro" of radio orchestra fame, came to Boston the night of the 1917 Boston-Chicago World Series.

He was very, very late.

Mopping his feverish brow and puffing away at a cheater"—Bernie did a dash from South station to the Ritz-Carlton—and made it in record time went on with hte show but without makeup.

Train times were jammed. Jumps from small towns were jammed and, to cap the climax, the elements did their worst during the night to keep Bernie from reaching town today.

Theater officials paced back stage. Radio hookups couldn't be completed. The anxious audiences patiently waited for Ben Bernie and his band. In less than 10 minutes after the train arrived the troupers were in the theater with all their trappings, behind the footlights and Bernie making explanations to the audience.

FULL OF 'AD LIB GAGS'

Somebody is going to catch something from somebody else and Bernie's late arrival but the "old maestro" took Boston's forgetfulness and talking about it in stride, pleasant—me, for instance."

He's a humorist, a man, this colonel, whose rank was recently bestowed upon him by Kentucky's governor because of Bernie's constant radio plugging for the Derby running state.

And he is full of gags, funny gags that he "ad libs" constantly.

"Say, did you know I lived in Hoboken about 13 years ago? I roomed in the old Rexford Hotel in Howard st., with all the sailors, while I played all the little roundabout towns.

"One week I played for Vic Morris—he is now manager of the Orpheum Theater. I fiddled for $25 weekly and glad to get it, thank you. I was a saxophoning kid in those days with a mop of hair, well let's not discuss that now—but exhibition.

HE GOT THE CASH

"When I had finished the day the stomach had to have food even if the pocketbook was short of virtuosity. And so I went to Vic and wistfully asked for $5.

"He looked up his records and then turned and said, 'Say, you haven't earned $5 yet. One-seventh of $25 is $3.50—good old Vic, he knew I needed it and gave it to me."

There is a great story behind the "maestro." He was the middle of 11 children and born in Bayonne, N. J., in 1893. His father was a blacksmith, a poor but honest "smithy" who recognized the music desires of his Ben and made study possible.

16 Chinese Drowned in River Ship Loss

Shanghai, May 28 (AP)—An American gunboat which today reached the scene of the sinking of the river boat ling in the upper Yangtze yesterday, reported that 16 Chinese passengers were drowned and probably a portion of the crew.

LIVE STOCKS IN WALL STREET FOR TODAY

PROMISE that the Senate will shortly give favorable consideration to something in the way of a compromise tax measure along the lines of a general sales levy holds out strong prospects for stabilizing market sentiment. Wall Street is in an especially receptive mood for such legislation since it would be welcomed as the most sound means of raising necessary revenue for a balanced budget, thereby relieving anxiety over this problem and clearing congressional activities.

The financial district is thinking in the direction that by relieving industry of too great a burden of taxation the current campaign to ease credit could be made much more effective.

Europe Selling to Acquire Gold?

Reports that private European investors are liquidating their American securities and withdrawing funds previously placed in this country in the form of gold are declared to be unfounded by reliable authority. Although ample evidence to support claims that foreign investors are pursuing such a course is found in the persistent decline in prices of internationally owned American stocks and bonds in the face of the unprecedented outflow of gold from the United States, these rumors are being refuted with the presentation of genuinely contradictory data.

Finds Europe Buys on Its Balances

One house handling a considerable volume of foreign market orders stated Europe has been buying on balance the past few days and paying for the purchases with part of their New York balances. It is also noteworthy that continued gold shipments out of this country is causing considerable uneasiness in high financing circles than was the case last Autumn.

Tin Plate Dividend Cut Is Expected

McKeesport Tin Plate continues to reflect the expected downward dividend revision. Liquidation of tremendous Chicago estate is still in progress, reports state.

Lists Shares With Stronger Support

A recognized competent market analyst has picked a select list of industrial shares for several weeks. The bases the selections on the fact that the stocks have withstood previous technical resistance levels and therefore seem to occupy a relatively strong position. Issues included are Reduction, Allied Chemical, American Can, Auburn Auto, Coca Cola, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck, Standard of California, Union Carbide, U. S. Steel and Westinghouse Electric.

C. & O. Dividend Is Viewed as Menaced

Speculative opinion that Chesapeake & Ohio's dividend cannot be regarded as entirely secure finds substance in the exceedingly high yield for the stock at existing prices.

SPECTATOR Says:

The General Electric dividend reduction was one of those bolts from the blue sky and the new decline in the market was a natural development. Wall Street today is in the frame of mind of not knowing what to expect next. Nothing has developed . . . Waiting, though the tax outlook is better. So the only thing to do is to stand aside.

Parallel

The big hope now is how a market leader is to do a few simple things. This means not only Congress but the banking element as well . . . Reports were current of a moratorium in central Europe over the week-end. The effect will be problematical since it has been anticipated for months . . .

The wheat situation still has possibilities. If the farm board gives the Red Cross 40,000,000 bushels more, it will only have about this amount left, thus removing the big overhanging factor on wheat prices.

CLOSE IS STEADY IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, May 28—The stock market in Wall st. closed steady today, proceeding in throwing off early weakness.

At the finish 134 issues had net advances, comparing with 231 declines and 155 unchanged from Friday's close. The changes were generally narrow.

COVERING BY BEARS

A rather substantial volume of over-night liquidation, reflecting Friday's decline, brought losses of 1 and 2 points for many leaders during the frist half hour.

However, covering in anticipation of the Monday holiday and a feeling that the tax bill would have made considerable progress by the time traders reconvened next week checked the sag and built up support for the recovery.

Tobacco, utility and merchandising issues bore the brunt of early liquidation but specialties and other groups in retracing lost ground. Trading was fairly active in view of the fact that many traders were away for an extended desk-end, transactions approximating 677,000 shares.

CITIES SERVICE

Selling of Cities Service stocks, following omission of dividends by principal units in that group, again featured activity on the curb market. Prices in the main body of stocks were steady.

Announcement of the death of Edward F. Swift, chairman of the board of Swift & Co., brought a flurry of selling into the packing company's issues, but they rallied at the close. Swift International broke to around 10 for an extreme loss of 4 points but later rallied to around 12. Swift & Co. common to around 7 but recovered moderately.

Sharp break of Cities Service issues had comparatively little effect on other issues except for moderate weakening in early trading. Cities Service common broke to 1¼ on an initial sale of 20,000 shares, and later gave way to 1⅛ for a loss of 1⅝. Declines of 5 to 20 points occurred in Cities Service preferred and in the Cities Service Power & Light 6 and 7 per cent preferred issues.

Weakness of utilities, especially some of those that have long held leading positions in their respective lines, today brought further grief to the bond market.

There was no specific news blamed for the inability of listed issues to stabilize their prices. Leaders of the power and light companies and communications corporations had little support in the short session. Most of the American Telephone bonds, which displayed drooping tendencies yesterday, added a point or more to their previous losses.

CITIES SERVICE CUTS MADE

New York, May 28 (INS)—It was learned today that the decision of Cities Service Company to omit dividends on its common and preferred stocks also rescinds the company's announcement made on May 18 of the regular quarterly dividends of one-half of 1 per cent in common stock and 2½ per cent in cash on the common shares, 50 cents on the $6 preferred issue, 50 cents on the preferred B isle and 50 cents on the preferred BB issue, which had been declared and was to have been paid July 1 to holders of record June 14.

Container Names 3 New Directors

Chicago, May 28—J. P. Bruet, John L. Burchard and Charles H. Strange have been elected directors of Container Corp. of America to succeed William B. Bassett, George H. Mead and C. W. Seabury, all resigned.

Election of these new directors follows omission of four cumulative preferred stock dividends. Company's charter provides that whenever there are four or more accumulated unpaid dividends on the preferred stock, preferred holders have the privilege of electing one less than a majority of the board of directors. Under the preferred holders now get representation on the board present management retains control, so that there will be no changes in the policies of the corporation.

Auto Part Makers Feeling a Rush

Detroit, May 28—Auto parts producers are feeling the rush of business. Since releases began coming in early in April Murray Corp. has added approximately 2000 employes. The 6000 new employed are working five and six days a week against a two or three-day week for 4000 men recently.

Brunswick's Stock Will Be Doubled

New York, May 28—The Stock Exchange has received notice that Brunswick Terminal & Railway Securities Co. of proposed increase in authorized stock to 600,000 shares from 300,000.

Cotton Steady in New York Market

New York, May 28—Cotton futures today closed steady, off a point. Prices: July, 5.51-52; Oct., 5.77; Dec., 5.90; Jan., 5.98; March, 6.13. Spot, quiet; middling, 5.80.

CITY WED

A Great Serial of Modern Marriage

By Faith Baldwin

The Languor of the Tropics Gets to Nevis and She Longs for a Snowstorm

PONCE WAS full of white, stinging dust. Palms, listless at noontide. White roads, and ox-carts. Barefooted natives. Blind beggars; beggars covered with sores, beggars coughing in the last stages of tuberculosis.

But fields of cane and sunsets of glory and soft-breasted mountains tiptoeing toward the sky, leaning toward one another in the attitude of static waves. And not far off, a calm and blue-green sea, like a great feather dropped from a mammoth peacock's tail.

WANT TO GET BACK HOME.

Tired people. People wanting to get away, to get "back home." People who couldn't. People caught there, year after year. Little Americas, bubbles, yellow, purple circles under their eyes, before drinking coffee three times a day, as a necessary stimulant, babies with infected hands and faces, due to digging in the dirt, as babies must, but dirt which was heavy and dangerous with the carelessness of human beings who had worked in it for over 200 years.

Malaria.

The food was expensive and it was terrible, "steaks" which boiled for hours before you could set your teeth in them; few vegetables; and not much fish, and what there was brought in early, exposed to the broiling sun, no water or milk fit to drink without boiling, lots of canned food at exorbitant prices and, of course, fruit.

Gossip. Rumor. Back-biting. The quarrelsome each-man-for-himself attitude of a handful of people involuntarily living together for society. Cabal and underground cut-throating. Speculations of salaries, private income, graft, bribes. And always the talk about sugar; the effect the new crop would have; the possibility of sugar stock falling even lower; the possibility of a wage cut.

Anxiety.

"Lord," sighed Nevis, thinking about her home hundreds of miles away, looking at her cockeyed mirror and regarding herself; yellow, dark circles under her eyes, hair damp, tight curled with heat, an old summer dress slipped on over very little else. "I'm getting," she thought frantically, "like the rest of them!" and rushed to the shower to get rid of the momentary refreshment of tepid water flowing over her wicked body, and rushed from the shower to the bureau drawers and closets to search frantically for fresh, fragrant linen, for a chiffon dress, before tying an apron over it, she would help the sympathetic Anna with Bill's supper. But by the time Bill came in again she was dripping once more, and her little chemise clung clammily to her skin.

MALARIA PREVALENT

Of course, they had malaria. Everyone had it. Why not?

She wrote to Della: "Tell 'em bark house will do at any rate I haven't seen any snakes."

But she never complained. She said . . . "I'm sorry as net . . . I got Bill into this. I won't kick."

She made such friends as were possible: the Jones family, one or two of the bachelors, always glad to come to her house and stretch their tired legs under a table and argue that, as they didn't know anything but sugar they might as well be here—or in Sand Dominique, or some other place . . . as back home. She called on the women, essayed a series of luncheons at two and then gave it up as a bad job.

"They're suspicious of me," she told Bill, "I don't know why." And Bill said gloomily: "It's rotten for you. Look here. I'm not getting anything out of this. They've got to put me to work where I'll learn something. Perhaps they are afraid I will. I never in my life was people so damned worried about jobs."

He went to Walter Mason. Shortly afterwards he was transferred to the factory settlement, 50 miles away over the mountains.

TEMPORARY TRANSFER

It was a temporary transfer. They left their house, as it was, and went over to reside in the guest house, a stone edifice up 60 stone steps with a mountain at its back and looking down upon the horseshoe curve of the bay, from which the odor of sugar waste was never absent . . . an odor which, to find the sulphuric acid smell somewhere among its essential components and which turned the coins in your pocket black.

They ate very badly at something called a restaurant, which was run for the bachelors and guests. They spent, each of them, a couple of days in the hospital on the bay, undergoing the heroic and unpleasant treatment for acute malaria, and they dined, no less, at the home of the chief executive, as entirely beautiful and magnificently out place, with as many gardens and servants and comforts as they would have obtained back in Wesleynne.

THOUGHT ABOUT CARTER

And daytimes Nevis read or sat on the veranda and looked over the bay and wondered. She thought . . . a lot. About herself. About Bill. About Della. Very often, it seemed very far away. She and Bill were united as close together as people must be, who depend upon each other for all the friendship and affection and companionship and mutual comprehension they are going to get out of the particular set of circumstances they call their life; yet not close enough to acknowledge that they are no happier than they had ever been.

Too tired. Too sick most of the time, too worried, because insensibly they had come into the general aura of anxiety which surrounded them.

Then, an expert in sugar making came down from the States. A man who had been at Bill's university several years before Bill. A good looking man, with a roving eye and a happy indifference to everyone he met except the Landmasters.

"Harrison's a corker," Bill reported, and Nevis put on her best bib and tucker and he ate at their table and called up to see her afternoons. He put off a good deal earlier than Bill, who was working in an atmosphere of a couple of hundred degrees Fahrenheit, from six in the morning to about 10 in the evening.

This man talked their language. Nevis thought, illogically, isn't it funny that when there's nothing like a strange, attractive man to make you mind your lingerie straps and the rune in your stockings? But she couldn't buy many new stockings, not on a $125 a month.

HARRISON WRITE WOMAN

And Harrison said: "You're the first white woman I wanted to talk to down here."

There were dances at the little club, though, after a time, the novelty had worn off, and Nevis refused to go. Harrison came alone. And one day Bill came home to find Harrison holding Nevis' hand and telling her that his wife had never understood him and that was why she was going to divorce him, after a while.

There was something of a scene. Nevis thought, afterward, that she just couldn't have happened back home. But semi-tropic heat and back in more than tropic temperature shortens a man's temper. And Bill was ugly and insulting and Harrison was smooth and sneaky. And Harrison had a lot of influence.

The invitations from the Cazs and their wives ceased. Bill was given a harder job. Harrison moved to another table and later disappeared from the picture. But Bill was inclined to blame Nevis.

"I thought you wanted to come here to get away from all that sort of thing," he told her. He said it literally, not literally, in her teeth. "I thought," said Bill bitterly, "that you wanted to be alone with me. To make something of our marriage. And then I catch you flirting with the first white man who comes near you who appears decently bred and educated and knows how to tie a bow tie," finished Bill absurdly.

HE HELD HER HAND

She said: "I didn't flirt with him, Bill. He just—talked. Oh, I know he held my hand. I didn't care. I didn't even know that I was holding it until you called it to his—and my—attention! You were comin' 'Let go my wife's hand,' you ordered in a voice that would carry to Ponce. No, I didn't know. It's too damned hot. I'm too tired all the time. I don't care who holds my hand," she said childishly, "that sort of thing doesn't mean anything."

They couldn't afford to quarrel long. They were, after all, too dependent upon each other. And Bill didn't say the one thing she had dreaded . . . "Well, who suggested we come here?" except by implication. They kissed and made up and things went on as usual. Except there were lots of white calls paid on the newcomers in the guest house and that at the club, and bachelors, who had rumors, fought for her dance card and that was very special attention, arriving from New York, made a remark to Nevis at one of the dances, which Bill overheard and at which the executive would have taken a swift, cooling little flier into the nearby bay had it not been for two of Bill's friends who held him, cursing, back, out on a balcony.

Now Bill had made friends. He always did. Nice, homesick young men who thought with a nostalgic wistfulness of the North, and sweated their hearts out trying to get somewhere—to a place which would build and back them.

MORE TIME ON HANDS

When the novelty of strange and beautiful surroundings, strange and unlike food and unfamiliar discomforts had worn off, Nevis found herself with more time on her hands than she had ever had and nothing to do with it. She read all the ancient copies of the library and devoured those with which Della and Daisy Howard and one or two other people sent down to her. She developed into a ready letter writer and wrote home to her family and to the Howards by every mail. Batch Dorgan had, Della wrote her, married his girl. "How long it will last," Della observed Della in her most illegible handwriting, "is a matter for conjecture."

There was, of course, people on the island who lived in a more or less continual festival. Visitors who came down for a winter, took a little house in the mountains where it was always cool, imported servants and food and lived much as they might live in New York. Now and then Bill and Nevis met such a household, people whom they already knew slightly or who had come down armed with letters of introduction to them. Upon those occasions they dressed, borrowed a company car, motored to some low stone house ricotous with covering bloom . . . by candle light at a long table and discussed life back home . . . what shows are on . . . what is everyone reading . . . over tall frosted drinks . . . "I mixed this one," their host pro tem would say, beaming happily, "with fresh pineapple and lime juice. Boy, it's a Paradise for a bartender!"

The Marry-Go-Round; Last Pearls

By HELEN ROWLAND

THREE - QUARTERS of a movie star's salary is spent in trying to live up to the roles she plays in the pictures. Which is why the super little film favorite is almost down to her last string of pearls!

* * *

If a woman could "do over" her husband as she "does over" her summer cottage every spring, marriage would be far more stimulating and less monotonous.

* * *

Trailing skirts and feminized pajamas may help to bring back masculine illusion; but men will still have their memories of piano ankles and razorlike knees to keep them from losing their heads for a long, long time.

* * *

During the courtship a man calls it "appealing"; during the honeymoon he calls it "coaxing" and after a year or two he calls it "nagging." And at the divorce trial he calls it "mental cruelty."

* * *

The hare say, it with flowers; the husband says it with checks; and then somebody comes along and says it with words—and it's all over but telling it to the judge.

* * *

The average woman could get a fair day's joy and satisfaction out of life if she lived for all the other women.

* * *

A man and a chick around the house do not actually make the world go around; but somehow they make you feel that it would come to a dead stop without them.

* * *

The girl who picks out a husband by intuition usually has just as many chances of happiness as the one who makes her selection with psychoanalysis and the family indorsement. Men, like movies, are always a lottery, first, and, second, a matter of taste.

* * *

When a girl marries, she loses the attentions of a lot of men—for a little while. And of one man for life!

Avoid Rickets by Cod Liver Oil and Sun

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

EVERY child has a right to a straight and strong body. Children are humiliated and made unhappy if they have knock-knees, bow-legs, enlarged joints or other body deformities. Such deformities are usually caused by rickets.

It is not happy to say that within recent years transmissible strides have been made in our understanding of rickets, and this disease is now of a milder form than in former years. Cases with bony deformities still exist, but they are becoming more rare.

Rickets is a nutritional disease, caused by absence of sunlight and lack of phosphorus and lime in the diet. When lime and phosphorus are deficient the tissues do not develop properly in consequence various bony deformities develop, due to the imperfect hardening of the bones.

Sunlight and cod liver oil are two definite agents essential to the prevention of rickets. Since the ailment may occur as early as the second or third month, it is advisable that cod liver oil be given to at this age.

Recently a substance called viosterol has been given in place of cod liver oil. This may be given in drop doses and is tasteless. During the season when exposure to the sun is difficult, cod liver oil, or its equivalent, should be given daily to infants and children.

Listen, World!

Unleavened Bread and Bitter Herbs

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MEMORIAL DAY!

Over the graves, the bugles sobbing,

Deep in our hearts, old memories throbbing—

Memories of our dead.

There they lie, dear ones who made life sweet; brave ones who made life possible.

There they lie, with their struggle over and their debt all paid. Poor, tired bones! Poor, broken dreams!

Elsie Robinson

And here we stand, you and I, warm in the love they gave, safe in the land they bought, heirs to a rich and proud and powerful nation—

GRUMBLING HEIRS!

Standing for a moment at salute, pausing a second to sing a song and lay a wreath and mumble a word of praise, then passing on—

TO GRUMBLE SOME MORE!

But, how were times for them, who lie so still now beneath their flowery wreaths? What were their pickings? How easy was their way? How far could they look ahead?

Memorial Day. We sing. We speechmake. We salute.

BUT HOW MUCH DO WE REALLY REMEMBER.

Do we remember the bloody rags about the naked feet that broke the trails our automobiles now follow?

Do we remember the little graves that marked the trail; the moans of mothers in agony that clotted the air, where now we laugh so easily; the hunger and fear and bewilderment of men whom now we acclaim as heroes, but who had no salutes to brace them while they toiled through the wilderness, while they fought the savage, while they suffered the long gnawing torture of loneliness and poverty?

How much of that do we remember?

Hard times? We grumble at hard times! But life was ALL hard times to them.

Hard times stop us.

THEY TOOK THEM FOR GRANTED; BUILT A NATION IN SPITE OF THEM; FOUND THE STRENGTH, THE COURAGE AND THE VISION TO BUILD THAT NATION AMID THOSE VERY HARDSHIPS.

Memorial Day!

Perhaps we'd get more out of it, put more into it, if we did a little less fancy memorializing, a little more real remembering; if, instead of decorating them with the flowers they seldom knew, we ate a bit of that bitter bread which was their daily lot, as the Jews do at "the Seder."

Do you know what the Seder is? It is part of the great Hebrew Memorial Feast, the Passover; part of each family's act of remembering the tribulations of their fathers.

Around the table the family sits, old and young, their faces solemn in the light of the sacred candles. Then the Seder Dish is brought and laid before the father. On the plate are the matzoths, of unleavened flour.

(Life for those who builded Israel had no leavening of ease. Life for them was as flat and tasteless as matzoth, but its elements were sacred. And no one who held himself a man turned away from life because it was hard.)

And upon the matzoth, in another plate, holding the bitter herbs —charoseth, carpas—

Life was full of bitter herbs. Pain and poverty, loneliness and humiliation, cruel bondage, agonizing death. But men ate that bitterness, unflinching; for life was a rare gift—and a holy privilege. And life was worth all it cost).

Softly the sacred candles burn. Quietly the father tells the story to his children—tells the price the ancients paid for Liberty and Truth. Solemnly they break the unleavened bread, take the bitter herbs, and eat in memory.

So the Jews remember—

WE, TOO, SHOULD REMEMBER ALL THAT FREEDOM COST; ALL THE BITTERNESS THAT WENT BEFORE THE GLORY.

(Copyright, 1932, for the Boston Evening American.)

Hints From the Beauty Box

HASTY EATING is responsible for many a case of ache. The digestive system feels that it is treated with disrespect and assimilation isn't properly taken care of. The tummy sulks, the intestinal tract gets sluggish, poisonous wastes collect, the skin taken on a mournful sallow hue and countless troubles start. Every meal should be a festival, even though it consists of nothing more than bread and cheese.

THE THREE-DAY liquid diet for reducing produces results. No solid foods allowed except perhaps a nibble at a cracker now and then. The menu consists of fruit juices, skim milk, buttermilk, tomato juice, clear broths, clam juice, unsweetened lemonade, clear tea and clear coffee. Go on this liquid spree once a month and in a year you will be pounds minus.

OpenSeason May 30 for Picnics

By MARTHA LEE

MAY THIRTIETH usually ushers in the open season for the picnic lover, and sandwiches have the first call.

If you are planning a wayside meal between now and next Tuesday, I do hope you'll try some peanut butter and banana sandwiches that have become a great favorite on the Lee family. On motor picnics especially we seem to feel the need of a really hearty sandwich, and this certainly answers all the requirements and is delicious and economical to boot.

Firstly, thin peanut butter with a little cream or evaporated milk, adding salt to taste. Spread the buttered slices of bread with this mixture. Now slice ripe bananas lengthwise and arrange the slices as a filling for your sandwiches.

Rolled sandwiches are ideal for picnics because the rolls can be made five or six hours ahead, wrapped in a cloth wrung out of cold water and then packed, and not sliced until the picnic ground is reached. Rolled sandwiches are not half as tricky as they look. Cut off the bottom, two sides and one heel of your loaf of bread. Lengthwise one heel and the top on to hold the slices firm as you cut them. Now cut your bread in thin slices lengthwise of the loaf, spread on the creamed filling, roll, seal with butter and wrap as directed.

FOR THE FILLING

For fillings, try cream cheese and raspberry jam; peanut butter and marshmallow cream; minced ham with finely chopped gherkins; pineapple, cream cheese and nuts; Roquefort cheese and chili sauce. You need a sticky sandwich filling, and at the same time it is nice to have contrast of colors. Cream cheese mixed with finely minced parsley is colorful and so devilled ham. Anchovy paste blended with butter is another favorite filling for the picnic, if you prefer, of course, these can be made into regulation sandwiches, wrapped in heavy oiled paper and then in a damp clean towel, but somehow they seem to taste better and go further, rolled. For some of the rolls, use a sweet gherkin pickle as a base to roll your sandwich around. Then when you cut it, you will have a little wheel with the pickle in the center.

A surprise loaf is a nice way of making sure of having fresh sandwiches at picnic time. For this, cut a loaf of bread in five horizontal slices. For the first layer, spread cream cheese and then a layer of ginger marmalade. For the second layer, cream cheese and a layer of blueberry jam. For the third layer, mint jam, and for the last layer repeat the cream cheese and ginger marmalade. When the loaf is put together, cover it with cream cheese which has been thinned down with cream until it is easy to spread, and decorate with a few chopped nuts or perhaps a strip or two of green pepper and a few slices of pimiento.

HUNGRY HUNTER

For the hungry hunters returning home, why not a hot hamburg loaf, cutting the bread into five lengthwise slices and having three layers of filling? For the first layer, spread the bread generously with butter and then four squares of thin hamburg which have been baked or fried. For the second layer, mushrooms fried in butter, and for the third layer, repeat the hamburg mixture. Spread the outside of the loaf with creamed butter, score in a box oven to heat for a few minutes, and serve in generous slices with lots of hot tomato sauce, or nice Hollver brown gravy.

Tips for Our Housewives

DURING the summer months curtains of filet netu should be given preference over curtains of heavier material, to allow free access of sunshine into the dwelling.

To clean a discolored enamel stove use kitchen salt moistened with paraffin.

A teaspoonful of vinegar added to the lard used for frying prevents food from becoming too fatty.

To prevent old potatoes from becoming discolored when they are boiled, add a slice of lemon to the water.

Ammonia mixed with a little whiting is excellent for cleaning copper. Apply with a pad of soft cloth, and polish with a piece of chamois.

Daily True Story

Almost In the Racket

"THAT," SAID JIMMY MURPHY, for the 10th time in an hour, "is a lot of applesauce."

"But, Jimmy—"

"Shop, Nora. No use going over it again. My mind's made up. I'm going into the racket."

His wife dropped her brown head to the shelter of her arms, flung in despair across the top of the kitchen table at which they sat.

"Don't cry, dear," Jimmy pleaded. "You know I've tried everything. I never thought, two years ago when we were married, that we'd come to this. Having a job in the county building and all."

"It wasn't your fault," sobbed his wife, "that you lost your job."

"You're right there," snapped the youthful husband. "Schwolts wanted me to do his dirty work for him and when I refused he trumped up charges against me and fired me. What did I get for being decent, Nora? Not a single thing. Just a chance to hunt a job in this depression. Now our money's all gone, the baby's coming and we're living in this hole that isn't fit for a pig."

JOB ON THE FORCE

"You can get a job on the force," argued Nora, patiently. "You know Capt. Costigan said —"

"A cop? Me?" interrupted Jimmy. "Say, Nora, don't talk to me about the force. Didn't my dad walk his feet off on a beat, until he got pneumonia and died? Didn't your father pound the streets as long as he lived? Why, my dad always told me how hard it was for a cop to keep decent. Easy money, graft, shoved at you all the time."

"But, Jimmy, if you start this—this bootlegging—won't you be taking easy money? Blood money, even?"

It won't be bloody, Tony Ferreri promised.

Moodily Jimmy went down the three flights of stairs, out into the street, turning toward the night club, several blocks away, at which he hoped to find Ferreri. As he neared the second cross street a long, gray roadster slipped by the curb before him. As it glanced toward it, then stepped up to the car.

"Hello, Ferreri," he called, "I was going to Dan's to look for you."

"You don't understand, Ferreri, I'm broke. I've got to make money."

"Oh, is that all," laughed the sleek, gray clad man, reaching into his vest pocket. "Here, take this. It'll hold you over 'till I get back."

As Jimmy took the bill Tony opened the door next the curb. A slight, sallow-faced figure slipped by Jimmy, sank back into the seat of the roadster, softly closing the door behind him. In the light of the street lamp the young man on the curb saw in the instant before the powerful car rolled away, a livid scar upon the little man's right cheek.

"Thanks," Jimmy called. Then he looked at the bill. "A century," he gasped. Carefully he tucked it into his watch pocket.

As he turned to retrace his steps he heard the distant wail of a police siren. Soon a policeman as he was, he could not fail that call. He sprinted to the corner. Then he saw, in the middis of the block, a knot of men and women peering at something that lay upon the sidewalk. From the far corner a policeman raced.

The police car skidded to a stop as Jimmy joined the group. Captain Costigan leaped to the sidewalk, knelt down beside the prostrate form.

"Keep quiet," he commanded the babbling huddle.

Then he lowered his head, brought his lips to the ear of the wounded officer and in a low, piercing tone, asked a question, again and again.

"Who got you, Muldoon? Who got you?"

Jimmy dropped to his knees beside the captain. He heard the dying man groan faintly, heard him whisper—

"Little — guy — scar — right — cheek —"

MAN WITH SCAR

Jimmy ran a stealthy finger into his watch pocket, felt that bill Ferreri had given him when he was waiting around the corner for that little—

"Hey, Captain," he shouted, grabbing Costigan's arm, "I know who shot Muldoon. It was one of Ferreri's men."

"I don't know—," hesitated the official.

"But I do, I tell you. I saw 'em. I saw a man that guy with the scar on his cheek, saw him get into Tony's car."

Costigan, convinced by the young man's vehemence leaped toward the police car, barking a fierce command to the policemen on the sidewalk. Jimmy jumped after him, caught him by the tail of his coat.

"Say, Captain," he shouted, "say I get on the force?"

"Sure," roared Costigan. "Dan Murphy's boy can always get on the force. Come to the station later, Jimmy."

"I'll come," cried Jimmy as the car lurched away. "Nora and I'll both be there tonight."

"Now," he mused as he started for the corner, "I've got to get home and tell Nora." His exploring forefinger again found its way into the watch pocket. "And a month," he continued "forget to give this to the captain."

Better for Boy to Wait, Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much in love with a girl who is 28 years old, and I am just 22. She claims to love me and I certainly love her, but my boy pals make fun of me and say I should find a girl of a more suitable age. Do you think when a girl is four years older than the man she loves that it makes much difference? It doesn't to us, but it seems to make a lot to the busybodies. GEORGE.

Dear George: That a woman happens to be four years older than a man doesn't make any real difference in marriage; but it would be wiser, it seems to me, if a boy of 22 did not decide this very important question till he was several years older at least. Marriage brings such tremendous responsibilities that few boys of your age are able to cope with them. Why not continue your friendship with this girl and see what time will develop? As for you boy pals' comments—it's just none of their business.

He Came Only Once

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am not quite 18 and live home with mother and father. I fell in love with a very nice boy. He came to see me once and we went to prayer meeting together, but he never came back to see me again. But often he comes to our house with our milkman and looks at me as if he cared a great deal, and he has told other people that he cared, but why won't he tell me. Should you advise me to let him go and try and get interested in someone else?

WAITING.

Dear Waiting: The next time that he comes around with the milkman, I think I'd be tempted to start a conversation and ask him if he didn't like the sermon at the prayer meeting, or something like that. There is probably nothing the matter with him but shyness, and that you will have to overcome with tact.

GOOD NEWS—THIS!
FOR YOU—FOR YOUR FAMILY
200 Bungalow Lots at Woods Lake

WOODS LAKE, located at the entrance of Cape Cod, just outside the quaint township of Middleboro. Yet easily accessible to Boston and vicinity over the best State roads of Massachusetts. Far enough away to be exclusive, yet near enough for comfortable commuting by automobile or train.

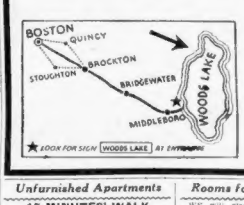
200 Choice Bungalow Sites
Will be offered during the next 10 days at unheard of prices

$39-$10-50c
Each Down Weekly

750 feet of shore frontage reserved for the unrestricted use of lot owners. Every lot overlooks this beautiful lake. Over 2 miles of roads completed. Sensible restrictions.

Locate in a fast growing summer colony. Enjoy the delightful odor of Cape Cod pine. Bathe in warm, tranquil water. Slip gracefully along in a tilting sail boat or test your skill with paddle and canoe. These and scores of other pleasures that are the sport of kings are at your command immediately after first down payment has been made. See this delightful spot today and build tomorrow. 25 cottages have been built and more are under construction.

At Last! A virtual paradise for the experienced angler who thrills to the strike of a flashing bass or sporty pickerel; fun, too, for the wife and kiddies who love to bask lazily in the sun while watching the bobbing float lure perch, kivies and hornpout from their lair.



HOW TO REACH PROPERTY

Representatives Always on Property

Drive out Saturday, Sunday or Monday (the Holiday).

Virgin lake property is scarce. These values will increase from year to year. Invest today for now and the future.
